Alaska Oil Begins Inching Southward

PRUDHOE BAY, Alaska (UPI) — The "black gold" of Alaska's North Slope began its long-awaited trip to the American consumer today.

With monitors watching every inch of the 800-mile pipeline that took nine years and $9.9 billion to construct, oil started to flow toward the ice-free port of Valdez today at the initial rate of 300,000 barrels a day.

It will take 30-40 days for the oil, oozing southward at 1.1 miles per hour, to reach Valdez on Alaska's south coast, from where it will be shipped by tankers to West Coast refineries.

Within the year, officials of the controversial project expect 1.2 million barrels a day to be flowing through the pipeline supplying about 15 per cent of America's domestic crude oil requirements.

At exactly 11 a.m. Victoria time, an eight-foot long metal "pig", similar in shape to a huge bar bell, was pushed into the main pipeline inside pump station No. 1 on the Arctic shore of the North Slope.

The "pig" followed nitrogen already in the pipeline and was pushed along by oil let in behind.

The oil flow was activated from the Alaska operations control centre in Valdez, 799 miles away.

Official government go-ahead was granted to the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. consortium Sunday by the U.S. Interior Department.

The U.S. government said, however, it was prepared to halt operations if its monitoring teams find a danger "to human life, natural resources or the environment."

"By approving startup, we are not signifying that we believe this entire transportation system — pipeline, terminal, and marine tanker routes — is absolutely perfect," Undersecretary James Joseph said in Washington.

"We do believe, however, that the national need for oil from Arctic Alaska far outweighs the importance of any remaining potential problems. A careful analysis of matters still unresolved has convinced me that this oil transport system is capable of operating safely and with minimum adverse affects on the environment."

$132M Boost For Welfare Programs

OTTAWA (CP) — The government introduced new welfare legislation today to clear the way for greater federal spending on a wide range of social services, including day care and aid to the old and disabled.

A new social services bill, introduced in the Commons by Health and Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde, would increase federal welfare spending by $132 million to an estimated $616 million next year and set out new terms for cost-sharing between Ottawa and the provinces.

Welfare officials said the bill does away with the old notion of providing government subsidies only to the poor and would allow Ottawa to share equally with the provinces in paying for numerous programs needed by people regardless of their incomes.

However, a so-called user-pay formula would apply to some provincially-run programs, including day care, home support services, transport for the disabled and employment and job counselling. Ottawa would only contribute 50-per-cent subsidies up to a maximum based on the individual user's income and family size.

The legislation, the result of federal-provincial finance ministers' and officials' conferences, would replace the 1961 Vocational Rehabilitation of Disabled Persons Act and parts of the 1966 Canada Assistance Plan.

It was introduced Monday to meet Lalonde's commitment to bring it before Parliament by summer. However, it is not expected to be passed and come into force until Jan. 2 at the earliest, officials said.

Under the legislation, Ottawa would for the first time share equally with the provinces in the financing of the following programs:

—Crisis intervention, including rape crisis centres, suicide hot lines and distress lines where individuals could call for advice.

—Family planning clinics, including counselling and referral services.

—Children's services, including headstart programs for the retarded, the hyperactive and children with what the government calls "severe behavioral problems."

—Social integration services, including half-way houses for former mental patients and criminals.

—Home support services, including homemaker services and "meals on wheels" for the old, the disabled the ill and the poor.

—Community preventative services, such as family life, pre-natal and child-care education; nutritional supplements for children and pregnant women and "cultural enrichment" programs.

Officials of the New York Yankees denied today that Bill Martin would be fired as manager of the American League baseball club. Martin was reported on his way out after becoming embroiled in an argument Saturday with high-priced slugger Reggie Jackson. Page 12.

Recent rumors that Frank Robinson, the first black manager in major league baseball, would be dismissed by the Cleveland Indians became more than rumors Sunday. Robinson got the axe and the troubled Indians promptly won two games under new manager Jeff Torborg. Page 12.

MS Victims Plead for Aid

About 25 multiple sclerosis victims made a plea to the provincial government today to allow vitamins to be covered by Pharmacare.

Group spokesman Dale Humphries said the placard-carrying protesters plan to picket the legislature again Tuesday in an attempt to gain a meeting with Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm.

Shortly before Pharmacare, the provincial drug subsidy program, was expanded to include all B.C. residents earlier this month, Vander Zalm said vitamins, because they are non-prescription drugs, would not be covered.

Humphries, who estimates there are thousands of people in B.C. who benefit from massive doses of vitamins prescribed in megavitamin therapy, said it costs about $110 a month in the beginning months of the therapy, and then as much as $35-$50 a month for life.

Vander Zalm is expected to meet next week with Victoria doctor Abraham Hoffer, a supporter of the therapy.

Humphries, himself a victim of MS, who was helped by megavitamins therapy, said the B.C. Committee For Orthomolecular Medicine has been trying for several months to meet the minister to present testimonials from people who have been helped by the therapy.

He said many victims of MS would be institutionalized if they could not afford the cost.

One of the demonstrators, 21-year-old Colleen Leeke, of Victoria, said it costs her $125 a month to keep up her megavitamin dosage.

If her parents could not help out with the bill, she said, she would be living in an institution instead of being a workng, productive citizen.

She said she thinks the megavitamin therapy will soon be an accepted treatment for diseases such as hers, "but with something like this you just can't wait. People are in pain."

NEWS BRIEFS

Security Tight

TORONTO (CP) — So tight was security connected with the two, 90-minute programs on organized crime in Canada that even high-level members of CBC staff were completely unaware of the investigations. See story on Page 11.

Doctors Ask More

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Medical Association, which has turned down a government offer of a 6.1 per cent fee increase, is returning to the bargaining table asking for the full settlement allowed by the Anti-Inflation Board and other benefits, according to the BCMA News. See story Page 6.

BANGKOK (UPI) — Cambodian forces killed five Thai marines in a weekend border clash along a section of disputed frontier.

CUPE Eyes Strikes Against Wage Curbs

VERNON (CP) — The Canadian Union of Public Employees may start rotating strikes to protest the provincial government's support of continued wage controls, delegates to the CUPE B.C. division's annual convention decided during the weekend.

CUPE will seek support to fight controls from the B.C. Federation of Labor and provincial labor councils.

The convention was also told that the Social Credit government had done nothing about unemployment.

Karen Sanford, New Democratic Party labor critic, said Social Credit had, in fact, made unemployment worse.

She said all the Socreds are interested in doing is balancing the books and making sure they take care of "their own".

As an example, she cited the removal of succession duties, which has been criticized as helping only rich people.

CUPE delegates also voted unanimously to oppose any attempt by the B.C. government to introduce right-to-work legislation.

MOST IGNORANT OF MONARCHY

TORONTO (CP) — A public opinion poll completed for the CBC program News Magazine indicates that most Canadians are ignorant of the monarchy.

The poll, conducted for the program by a Toronto research firm and broadcast on the show Sunday, shows that 85 per cent of urban Canadians know that Canada is a parliamentary democracy, 64 per cent know it is a federation, but only 29 per cent know Canada is a monarchy.

The program said that 51 per cent of those polled believe Canada should continue with the monarchy, 41 per cent say it should not, and eight per cent are undecided.

It said most pro-monarchists live in the Prairies and the Maritimes, while most against live in Quebec.

Fredericton RCMP Pinching Themselves

FREDERICTON (CP) — Five officers and a woman office worker in the local RCMP detachment apparently shared in a $1-million winning ticket on the Sunday night Loto Canada draw staged in Halifax.

Serita Hinchey and the five Mounties — Sgt. Fred Barton and four others who did not want their names used — held ticket number 1609533, last $1-million winner draw in the lottery.

JOHN BROWN

A 43-year-old bachelor, John Brown of Ingersoll, Ont., was also one of the "instant millionaires" after the draw.

Mrs. Hinchey said she thought she held a $100 winner when she looked at the ticket in her hand.

Her husband said she was wrong: It was a $1,000 winner. She looked again and started screaming when she saw it was a $1-million winner.

Broadbent Sure Cover-Up Tried

OTTAWA (CP) — NDP Leader Ed Broadbent said today he is convinced that either the RCMP or former solicitor-general Jeane-Pierre Goyer attempted to cover-up force involvement in a 1972 illegal police raid on a left-wing Montreal news agency.

"There's no doubt about it at all," Broadbent told a news conference shortly after asking Speaker James Jerome to hold an emergency debate on the case.

Amin Reported Missing

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — One of Kenya's leading newspapers says President Idi Amin of Uganda is missing after an attempt to assassinate him during the weekend.

Government officials in Kampala, the capital of neighboring Uganda, said by telephone that as far as they know the report is inaccurate. But an unidentified Ugandan who answered the telephone at Amin's residence at Entebbe, 19 miles southwest of Kampala, said: "We don't know where he is or what has happened to him."

Radio Uganda reported that Amin might attend a "refugee day" celebration in western Uganda today.

However, in a later news bulletin, the radio dropped its report that the president would attend the ceremonies. It made no mention of the Ugandan leader.

Ideas Vary On Controls

OTTAWA (CP) — The government was told today it should end wage and price controls immediately, that it should keep the controls until their scheduled expiry at the end of 1978 and that it also should remove the restraints next Jan. 2. This conflicting advice was showered on the government in free-wheeling sessions with 15 business, labor and public interest groups in "continuing consultations" on post-controls issues and related matters.

Cabinet ministers at the sessions also received generous advice about issues as far-ranging as fisheries, freedom of information and northern pipelines.

The only areas of agreement seemed to be that the government continue its talks with the various interest groups on economic planning and that a monitoring agency for wages and prices be kept when controls end.

But at least one organization, the Employers' Council of British Columbia, warned that its participation in any future consulting body depends on the function of that council solely as an information-gathering unit.

And the Consumers Association of Canada told the six-member group of ministers, headed by Treasury Board President Robert Andras, that it agrees with the federal commitment to end compulsory controls at an early date.

The association added, however, that a prices review agency should be set up for the post-controls period.

The Employers' Council of British Columbia, appearing for 70 corporations which employ half the province's labor force, said that Jan. 2, 1978, is its preferred time to start phasing out controls.

This would mean that the initial round of agreements, which the council says will be crucial, fall mainly among privately - employed union members, and will reflect the constraints of the marketplace.

An earlier decontrol date would mean that more settlements involving government workers would be up for negotiation.

Canadians Illiterate, U.K. Reporter Claims

LONDON (CP) — Canadians are portrayed as illiterate but healthy materialists in a guide to prospective British emigrants published this week in a London newspaper.

In an article on "the great emigration gamble," Peter Taylor of The Sunday Telegraph set out to describe "what life really is like on the other side of the immigration barriers."

Taylor limited his itinerary to Toronto, Vancouver and Victoria, and said of the latter city that its pseudo-English look, "is everything I had feared."

"For all my doubts about where Canada's heart lies," he concludes, "there are some staggering opportunities for those who earnestly seek them."

On his way to this conclusion, however, Taylor presses some tender Canadian nerves.

After mocking the way a French-Canadian stewardess spoke English on his flight to Toronto, he describes the city's skyscrapers glittering in the sunset—"a reminder, if it were needed, that in style and substance Canada is all-American."

"Canadians themselves regard their neighbors south of the border as louder and brasher, but the difference is generally too subtle for the British eye," he says, offering a vignette of some paunchy middleaged men in bright jackets, check pants and white shoes walking stiff-legged as gunslingers into a hotel bar.

He notes that Canada's ethnic communities have retained distinct identities, unlike those of the United States.

"The melting pot has failed. Perhaps it is too cold."

After talking to a number of British emigres in Canada, he writes that Britons can get richer by moving to Canada. He adds that "the catch is that you usually have to work harder."

Taylor also reports Canadians are active in sports and the great outdoors.

"Canada is unnervingly healthy."

Taylor adds a piece of advice for emigrants to Canada: Don't ever tell a Canadian that "in England we used to do it such-and-such a way." You will be taken as a know-all Limey and advised to return to England.

Taylor also recounts what immigrants in Canada think about Britain.

Paddy Sherman, publisher of the Vancouver Province, is quoted as complaining of British bureaucrats and the fact that no shop would rent him a tape-recorder during a recent visit.

"There is no doubt in my mind that there is less government in Canada, and therefore less bureaucracy."

Taylor also remarks that he saw in Toronto's public places none of the spray-can slogans and invectives that smear many of London's walls. He goes on to quote an acquaintance as explaining: "Canadians have no opinions."

Overboard Sailor Finds Phone

A man who fell overboard from a tug early today rescued himself by swimming to an island, finding a pay phone and calling the police.

At 11:48 p.m. the tug Black Savage alerted the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre at CFB Esquimalt that they had lost a man over the side between Gibsons Landing and Bowen Island.

Missing was Leonard James of Langley, B.C.

The coast guard hovercraft and the coast guard cutter Moorhen were despatched from Vancouver. At 1:25 a.m. a Labrador helicopter and Buffalo aircraft were airborne from CFB Comox.

Meanwhile James, who had fallen from the stern of the tug, was busy swimming.

He swam to Keats Island, although he wasn't aware where he was at the time.

He phoned the Royal Canadian Mounted Police detachment at Gibsons Landing.

An RCMP spokesman said today they received James' call at 1:35 a.m. Because he didn't know where he was they had to figure out which island would have a convenient pay phone. It had to be Keats Island.

They chartered the Gambier Island Water Taxi, picked James up and delivered him back safe aboard.

★ PAIR DROWNED

Two Lower Mainland canoeists drowned Saturday in a boating mishap in Nitinat Lake.

Lake Cowichan RCMP said a fishing vessel spotted the body of one man in the sea off Carmanah Point, and the second body washed up on the beach with their overturned canoe and outboard motor.

Police were notified of the accident about 11 p.m. Saturday and flew to the remote area by helicopter.

They identified the men as Gerry Allan Smith, 29, of Whonnock, and Gary Stephen Vaughan, 27, whose address was not given.

The pair had been canoeing in Nitinat Lake and may have upset when they tried to run the tidal narrows which are exposed to breakers from the open Pacific, police said.

Carmanah is about nine miles south of the narrows near the village of Clo-oose.

Another Horner Jumps to Grits

TORONTO (CP) — Norval Horner said today he is quitting the federal Progressive Conservative party and would have no qualms about opposing Opposition Leader Joe Clark as a Liberal candidate in the next federal election.

Horner, a former member of Parliament for the Saskatchewan riding of Battleford-Kindersley, said he had no plans to fight Clark head-to-head in a federal election but "I think I'm more in tune with the thinking in Alberta than Joe Clark."

"If I was nominated by the Liberals to run against him, I will."

Brother Jack Horner, now a Liberal cabinet minister without portfolio, defected from the Conservatives nine weeks ago and a sister, Kay McKorkell, former director of the national Conservative executive, quit the party last month. Another brother, Hugh, is deputy Conservative premier of Alberta.

Horner made the comments in an interview after announcing his plans to switch parties on the CTV program Canada AM.

Horner said his brother Jack had discouraged him from running against Clark but added he thought Jack was being cautious.

"I don't think Jack wants it to appear that the Horners are taking over the Liberal party, which we're not," he said.

Horner said he would probably send Clark a letter advising him of his defection.

"It's been a series of frustrations issue after issue in the Conservative party," Horner said. "The Conservatives under Joe Clark are an opposition party but are no alternative to the Liberal government."

"We've really got a one-party system. For Canadians there is just no alternative. I've been waiting for Clark to lead as a Conservative but he's really just a small "l" Liberal."

Horner, now a high school principal in Hinton, Alta., said Clark agreed with the Liberal language legislation.

"When Quebec went to Parti Quebecois, Clark blamed it on the Liberals. You can't agree with them on one hand and then blame then on the other."

THE OUTCASTS

Tea Hikes Brewing After Big Switch

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — High coffee prices have spurred consumers to switch to tea, but now tea prices are going up, the U.S. agriculture department said Sunday.

The department's publication Foreign Agriculture noted that London auction market prices for all teas averaged about 70 cent U.S. a pound last year, compared with 63 cents in 1975 and a 10-year average of 51 cents a pound.

In the first four months of 1977, the London market price has averaged $1.37, soaring in April to $1.87.

But the department said tea is still a better buy in terms of the number of cups it makes. A pound of black tea brews about 200 cups, green tea about 150, while a pound of coffee yields only 50 cups.

The department said U.S. retail sales of tea last year reached a record 67,132 metric tons valued at $539 million. In 1975, sales were 63,504 tons worth $508 million.

World tea production this year, excluding China's output, is estimated at 1.35 million metric tons, 3.1 per cent more than in 1976. But the department said world supplies are expected to remain tight and prices high for the near future.

Meanwhile in Toronto, food company executives said the price of coffee may be coming down.

Hyman Solomon, vice-president of marketing for Miracle Mart, a division of Steinberg's Ltd. of Montreal, said there has been a significant drop in pricespa id for green coffee beans on the New York stock exchange.

The decline followed an announcement by Columbia that it was cutting the export price by 34 cents to $2.69 a pound.

Wayne Newson, vice-president and general manager of Standard Brands Food Services Co., Montreal, predicted a drop in retail prices by late August or early September, provided there is no crop damage in Brazil or a dock workers' strike in New York.

Bob Tebbutt, a commodity futures broker in Toronto, said there might be a surplus of coffee in the world if Brazil's current crop suffers no frost damage.

LATE '77 MEANS '78 CAR

DETROIT (UPI) — The Ford Motor Co. plans to start building 1978 models this week and labelling them as 1977 ones in a move designed to counter congressional delay on easing pollution control standards.

The action will give an indirect bonus to U.S. consumers who buy the "late 1977" cars — they'll escape planned $200 to $300 price hikes on similar models with 1978 designations.

In the long run, however, the cars may have lesser trade-in values than those with the 1978 label.

The Environmental Protection Agency has decided the tactic is legal and that the new cars won't have to meet the tough 1978 anti-pollution standards.

The shuffle by the nation's No. 2 automaker stems from current emmision requirements for 1978 models scheduled to arrive in dealer showroms this fall.

The house and the Senate have enacted different amendments postponing the tough standards mandated by the Clean Air Act.

But they must still devise a final compromise version and members may take until August to reach agreement.

The industry has threatened to shut down all production in the largest private industry in the U.S. because it can't meet the existing 1978 Clean Air Act standards.

ENGLISH DOWNGRADED

There is a need for re-evaluation of the emphasis given English in B.C. schools and the time teachers have to do an adequate job, the director of the University of Victoria's freshmen English program said today.

Dr. Victor Neufeldt said the only way to teach students writing skills is to have them write. However, he added, this requires a great deal of time on the teacher's part to adequately assess the results.

"There has to be some recognition that the person with the job of teaching English is going to have to have adequate time to do the job," he said.

Neufeldt also said that in recent years the number of subjects offered in B.C. schools has increased substantially and "English doesn't occupy the central position it used to."

"There is going to have to be a re-evaluation of the emphasis and place that English should have."

Neufeldt estimates that, based on the results of an English placement test, about 14 per cent of the students who will enter UVic next year will be required to take a remedial composition class.

This figure could go higher, he said, as there is another 13 per cent who are border-line cases and may be required to take the course.

The estimates were based on scores sent to the university by the Educational Research Institute of B.C., which administered the placement test to 17,000 Grade 12 students in May.

Neufeldt said the university is not surprised at the results as it has conducted a similar test for the past seven years. He said for the past two years, UVic has found 17 per cent of the incoming students require remedial English.

Syrian Assassinated

BEIRUT (Reuter) — Brig. Abdul Hamid Razouk, head of the Syrian army's missile corps, was assassinated in Damascus on Saturday, travellers arriving here from Syria reported Sunday.

Shuttle Test Successful

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The space shuttle Enterprise was a good passenger, say U.S. space agency officials, and the delta-winged craft may soon break loose from "mother."

The shuttle completed its first manned flight Saturday, a 54-minute piggyback trip atop a jumbo jet.

When the spacecraft and its mother ship returned to the runway at the desert test site, veteran astronaut Donald (Deke) Slayton, director of current shuttle testing, said the Enterprise should begin carrying men and material into space by 1980.

The next manned test flight is scheduled for June 28, and the first free flights might be as early as July 27, Slayton said.

Saturday's flight was designed to test the craft's control and guidance systems and power units. It was the first in a series of four manned flights in which the shuttle will remain attached to the 747 airplane.

TOURIST ALERT

The following persons are asked to contact the nearest RCMP detachment for an urgent personal message: George Bachmaier of Thunder Bay, Ont.; Gloria Eleanor Daniels of Germainville, Peru; Joe Pederson of Summerland; Keith Wilson of Richmond.

the weather

Our protective ridge of high pressure has deserted the province to favor the prairies. A more westerly flow has quickly asserted itself over the coast and is slowly pushing itself inland. This will allow a series of weak but nonetheless significant disturbances to shuttle themselves over the regions. Each will bring its own band of cloud and some rain activity. Temperatures will become more seasonal.

Political Prisoner Swap Has Spy-Movie Overtones

UVIC PICKETS appeared outside B.C. Hydro transit office on Gorge Road today to protest Hydro's decision to discontinue experimental student bus pass program. Hydro says number of passes sold doesn't justify continuation of the service but Alma Mater Society is protesting the move and claiming Hydro has responsibility to improve transit services for all groups — including students. BONN (UPI) — In a secret operation with thriller-movie overtones, East Germany freed 11 political prisoners in return for the release of Chilean Communist leader Jorge Montes.

The swap, reminiscent of last year's exchange of Soviet dissident Vladimir Bukovsky for another Chilean Communist leader, Luis Corvalan, took place at Herleshausen, a border crossing to East Germany about 100 miles northeast of Frankfurt.

The operation Saturday night unfolded with tight secrecy.

The Chilean embassy in Bonn gave reporters the first details of the exchange Sunday once the Chilean government in Santiago announced the swap.

The embassy said Montes, a former Communist senator jailed in 1975 for "elandestine activities," was flown from Chile to Frankfurt aboard a jet of the Chilean LAN airline Saturday night and released to West German authorities.

Chilean ambassador Mrs. Lucia Gevert received Montes in Frankfurt and handed him a Chilean passport, the statement said.

After delays caused by fog, they flew by helicopter to Herleshausen, where Montes was turned over to East German authorities in exchange for the 11 political prisoners.

Egon Franke, the West German minister for inter-German relations, would give no further details of the exchange for "humanitarian reasons," and a spokesman for his ministry refused to identify the 11 political prisoners released to West Germany.

"In the first place, the 11 all were Germans," the spokesman said. "We are in no position to say how many were East Germans or how many were West Germans. This is all we have to say."

Police sources said one 75-year-old prisoner who had spent the past 21 years in a Communist jail was taken to hospital after his release.

Chile said the swap was arranged at the request of Bonn.

Bethune Home A Shrine

TOKYO (AP) — The adobe house where Canadian doctor Norman Bethune lived while treating Chinese Communist soldiers in the late 1930s has been rebuilt "to perpetuate his memory and learn from his internationalist and Communist spirit," China's official Hsinhua news agency reported today.

The Lingchiu County party committee in north China's Shansi province also has repaired an operating room in the special surgical hospital in Yangchiachuang used by Dr. Bethune between Nov. 25, 1938, and Feb. 19, 1939, Hsinhua said.

"Working day and night to save wounded soldiers, he also found the time to treat local people," the agency said. "His sense of responsibility in his work and warm-heartedness toward all comrades and the people made a profound impression on the people of Yangchiachung."

Hsinhua said Dr. Bethune was more than 50 when the Communist parties of Canada and the United States sent him to help China in its war against Japan.

Bhutto Blasting U.S.

LAHORE (AP) — Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto has revived his accusation that the United States is making trouble for him by interfering in Pakistani politics—just 10 days after he said he was ready to open a new chapter in Pakistani-U.S. friendship.

There is speculation that Bhutto and his Pakistan People's party will try to make the alleged U.S. meddling an issue in the election which months of demonstrations and riots have forced him to promise. The election probably will be held in October.

Bhutto's party won an overwhelming majority in parliament on March 7. The opposition Pakistan National Alliance accused the government of wholesale rigging of the voting and started a campaign of demonstrations and strikes demanding a new election. An estimated 300 persons were killed and $500 million in production was lost during the resulting violence.

Bhutto in a speech in Parliament on April 28 said that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency was pouring millions of dollars into Pakistan to aid his foes.

Washington denied the charge.

U.S. Senators Push Mideast N-Sales

WASHINGTON (WP) — A delegation of 12 U.S. senators who visited the Middle East late last year urged the United States to export nuclear power to Israel, Egypt and Iran despite doubts about the spread of atomic weapons to those countries.

The 12 said in a 55-page report released Sunday that the export of nuclear power to Israel, Egypt and Iran gives the U.S. "an opportunity to co-operate with those countries in their energy and development programe and to advance our objectives" in halting the spread of atomic weapons into the Middle East.

Conceding that only Iran had signed the non-proliferation treaty prohibiting the spread of atomic weapons 11 of the 12 said they did not believe that the U.S. should condition nuclear export to Israel and Egypt on their signing and ratifying the treaty.

Neither did the 11 believe the U. S. should condition export to Israel on its placing the nuclear research reactor at Dimona in the Negev Desert under international controls.

"The delegation believes it would be counter-productive," the report said, "to require such measures as a pre-condition to the pending sales."

Only Sen. John Glenn felt that Israel and Egypt should sign the NPT and Israel should place the Dimona reactor under safeguards as conditions of nuclear export.

"The failure to insist on safeguards for Dimona as a condition to the supply of American nuclear material to Israel is bound to adversely affect our non-proliferation objectives," Glenn said in a two-page dissent.

"I believe we should attempt to redraft the proposed agreements with Israel and Egypt."

Partners in Revenue-sharing

It may be trite and only a simple truism, but time is the only test of the new municipal revenue-sharing scheme announced by Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis on Friday.

How well it will work, how well it will alleviate the financial pinch for municipalities, will only be known in several years' time. Compared with the existing formula (which will remain in use until April 1, 1978), it does seem to be a marked improvement. But then devising a better formula than the current creaking makeshift could not have been difficult.

Curtis' new formula is an advance of light years over the old one in that it ties municipal grants directly to provincial income. The Union of British Columbia Municipalities for many years has urged that revenue-sharing be adopted.

The agitation began in the go-go years of the late 1960s, when a direct share in provincial revenues would have been a windfall for B.C.'s cities and towns. Those were the years when B.C.'s budget mushroomed, and the influx of revenues made possible all sorts of new frills, from medicare and pharmacare to homeowner grants and mincome. By comparison, municipalities had to get by on bread and water. They did not benefit from the rampant inflation of the last decade as the provincial and federal governments did.

Guaranteeing the municipalities one point of personal income tax and one point of corporate income tax ($23.5 million and $18.5 million, respectively in the current year) and six per cent of all sales taxes and resource revenue ($77.4 million) would have given them this year very little more than they got under the old method.

But the important — almost revolutionary — change is that the money is a guaranteed share of the provincial budget. The new formula is as important for the fact that philosophically for the first time it recognizes municipalities as partners, however, junior, with a right to a share in provincial revenues.

Now most of the municipalities' aid from the provincial government comes as a $34 per capita grant. Each year it has usually been adjusted upwards, but municipalities have often been kept waiting — like dogs waiting for bones under the table — sometimes until well past the statutory deadline for determining local budgets and fixing the mill rate.

Most of a municipality's revenue share will still be a per capita grant, but an ingenious formula will ensure that the sharing is more flexible than the previous rigid payout on a strict population basis. The old system could not distinguish between two municipalities of equal population, one of which grew rapidly in a few years while the other remained static. Obviously the former needed more cash to cope with rapid growth and expanded services.

The new system will see most of a municipality's share paid on a per capita basis, but part of it will also be paid on the basis of assessed value and the size of municipal expenditures. Thus a city whose assessed value was three per cent of the total of all assessed value in the province will get three per cent of the assessed value grant, even though on a per capita basis it has, say, 2½ per cent of the total population.

This will work to Victoria's advantage, for example, as compared to neighboring Saanich. The capital city's population is 62,551 — about 11,000 lower than Saanich. But in assessed value ($59 million more) and expenditures (about $7.5 million more) Victoria rates higher, and thus will get a proportionately larger share of those grants.

There are disadvantages in the new formula as well. It could prove to be as rigid as the old one. Each year, payments to the municipalities may not exceed the income generated by the tax points. In years of economic expansion, it will work well. In years of recession or stagnation, municipalities will be hit harder than the provinces because they haven't the same wide safety net, the same diversity and ability to borrow outside B.C.

But its over-all effect probably will be beneficial. It will give municipalities more money in good years, but in lean years they will have to act with greater responsibility. It just may signal the coming of age of the municipalities, until now the wholly dependent "creatures" of the provincial government.

Signs of the City

Congratulations to Victoria city council for its decision to take legal action against 28 businesses who still are contravening the city's sign bylaw. The action should have come months ago. The bylaw now is nearly five years old and almost all city businesses have been complying with it for close to two years.

The bylaw, prohibiting roof signs, third-party signs, and signs that project more than a certain distance from a building, is admittedly strict. But one long look along Douglas Street shows immediately how effective it has been in improving the look of the city. Compare Douglas, for example, with the proliferation of garish signs and billboards that clutter the approaches to the Granville Street Bridge in Vancouver.

Although the bylaw is strict, council reasonably gave businesses three years to comply with its more stringent provisions. Almost all businesses came in under the wire, and most of the rest have now complied after some discussions with city staff. Only the 28 holdouts remain.

Already those 28 defiant businesses have received 18 months more free sign advertising than their law-abiding neighbors. If council does not take sharp action against them, it will be tacitly putting out the message that in Victoria, law-breaking does pay. That surely is not the message it wants its businesses to receive.

JAMES RESTON

Carter and the Communists

ROME — United States officials are watching the rise of Communist influence in western Europe with the utmost care, but under Jimmy Carter they are not following the Kissinger line of issuing public warnings about it.

In May of 1976, just before the last Italian elections, Henry Kissinger issued an emphatic public warning: "The dominance of Communist parties in the west," he said, "is unacceptable. Even the impact of an Italian Communist party that seemed to be governing effectively would be devastating — on France and on NATO, too."

There is no reason for believing that the Carter administration is any less concerned about the Communist bid to sweet-talk its way to power than Kissinger, but its tactics are different. It is following very carefully the attitude defined by President Carter in his interview with west European reporters just before the summit meeting in London last month.

"I think," Carter said, "the first premise on which we function is that the European citizens are perfectly capable of making their own decisions about political matters through the free election process . . .

No Interference

"Secondly, we prefer that the governments involved continue to be democratic and that no totalitarian elements become either influential or dominant. And I would hope that the democratic parties would prevail during the coming years in the struggle for political authority . . .

"To summarize: we certainly prefer that the democratic parties prevail in the future. And we can encourage that process, not by interfering in electoral procedures within countries themselves, but by making the system work ourselves . . .

This seems to be a more acceptable theme both here in Rome and in France, where President Valery Giscard d'Estaing faces a challenge from a powerful Socialist-Communist coalition in next year's national elections. There have been no charges of "interference" by Carter as there were after Kissinger's warning of last year, and even Communist spokesmen in Rome this week had no complaints. "We never expected any benediction from Washington," they said. Carter's campaign for human rights had clearly been an important factor in the political contention between the Communist and democratic parties of the west. By emphasizing human rights, the president may have infuriated Moscow but the Communist spokesmen here are careful not to get on the Moscow side of this controversy.

They need the support of non-Communist elements in order to increase their influence with the electorate and accordingly proclaim their support for human rights and individual freedom. This may merely be political opportunism, but for the moment they are playing down their ties to Moscow and proclaiming their willingness to work within the democratic system and to co-operate with the Western allies in NATO.

For example, Sergio Segre, the head of the foreign section of the Partito Comunista Italiano, said in an interview here this week that despite all the economic problems in the West, nobody in the West believed any longer in "the Soviet model" as an answer to the west's problems.

JIMMY CARTER
. . . more acceptable

Observers here note, however, that Communist officials elsewhere in Italy still proclaim their allegiance to Soviet imperialistic designs, and you can read the Communist party newspaper, L'Unita, for weeks without ever finding a word of criticism of Moscow's policies or a word of praise for Carter's campaign for human rights.

Meanwhile, United States officials here and elsewhere in western Europe emphasize that Carter's human rights compaign is not a departure from but a return to an American tradition. For example, the new American ambassador here, Richard Gardner, has been quoting past American presidents to make the point.

President Woodrow Wilson: "The things we have always carried nearest to our hearts are democracy, the right of those who submit to authority to have a voice in their own governments, the rights and liberties of small nations, a universal domination of right by such a concert of free peoples as shall bring peace and safety and make the world itself at last free."

President Franklin D. Roosevelt: "In the future days, which we seek to make secure, we look forward to a world founded upon four essential freedoms: freedom of speech and expression . . . freedom of every person to worship in his own way . . . freedom from want . . . freedom from fear . . ."

More Tension

President Dwight D. Eisenhower: "We shall always hold that there can be no true peace which involves acceptance of a status quo in which we find injustice to many nations, repression of human beings on a gigantic scale . . ."

President John F. Kennedy: "Is not peace, in the last analysis, basically a matter of human rights?"

This indirect approach to the Communist parties of western Europe has had an influence unsuspected when the accord was signed by the major powers of the Warsaw and NATO Pacts at Helsinki two years ago. Attention then was centered on the issue of borders, but it is human rights that will dominate the Helsinki Review Conference at Belgrade.

Finally, the more Moscow opposes the human rights campaign, the more tension there is between the United States and the Soviet Union, and the greater the split between Moscow and the Communist parties of the West.

Carter does not need to proclaim that Communist governments or coalitions in the West are "unacceptable." By emphasizing the positive aspects of human rights; he has made the Moscow line "unacceptable" even to the leaders of the western European Communist parties, and forced them to change their arguments if not their minds.

The federal blue machine.

PAUL WHITELAW

Victim of Decayed Standards?

WASHINGTON — When a 15-year-old boy rapes a 16-year-old female schoolmate, is he reacting "normally" to provocative women's clothing styles and the erotic stimulations of a sexually permissive society?

It might have seemed an incredible question — until a county judge in Madison, Wis., ruled that the boy was, in effect, a victim of decaying community moral standards.

Judge Simonson sentenced the youth to a year at home under court supervision, an exercise in judicial leniency that has sparked a bitter controversy and attracted nationwide attention.

The decision angered not only advocates of tougher court treatment of law-breakers, but people offended by what they call the "sexism" of the judge's remarks.

Responded 'Normally'

Simonson's judicial career is now in jeopardy, and he could be removed from the bench.

In Wisconsin, county judges are elected for a six-year term.

A coalition of feminist groups called the Committee to Recall Judge Simonson has collected 14,000 of the 21,000 signatures required to force him to stand in a special election.

Simonson ruled in late May that the boy — whose age has kept his identity confidential — was responding "normally" to the stimulations of a community that condones massage parlors, topless dancing, pornographic magazines and provocative female attire.

Rejecting the request of a young woman prosecutor that the youth be confined to a juvenile correctional institution, Simonson launched into a discussion of sexual permissiveness and what he described as immodest female dress standards.

"Are we supposed to take an impressionable person, 15 or 16 years of age, who can respond to something like that, and punish that person severely because they react to it normally?" the judge asked.

"There should be restoration of modesty in America," he admonished.

"Whether you like it or not, a woman's a sex object, and they're the ones who turn the man on, generally."

Simonson would like parts of the transcript of the court proceeding to be made public, a move he feels would explain why he returned the youthful rapist to his home.

Because the offender is a juvenile, the proceedings of the court hearing with the exception of the verdict and the judge's comments about the sentence have not been reported.

While no members of the "public" were present, there was one reporter for a local paper in attendance.

Simonson has asked the senior county judge to determine which, if any, portions of the hearing transcript can be released.

Richard Cates, a Madison lawyer retained by Simonson as an advisor, says the judge accepted the sentencing recommendation of social workers and a psychologist.

Cates also said in a telephone interview that the judge was prevented from placing the youth in a juvenile home. "You have to have a psychiatric problem to be admitted to a home, and he has no psychiatric problem."

Asked whether a youth who commits rape in a high school stairwell might not have a psychiatric problem, the lawyer replied: "Not in this case.

"The alternative for juveniles — and the department of social services felt that would be inappropriate. Sending him to that kind of institution would have done more harm than good."

But Janet Heisse, whose title is "chairperson" of the Committee to Recall Judge Simonson, says she does not take issue with the lenient sentence—only the "sexism" of the judge's remarks.

"We think his remarks that men are easily provoked to rape show a misunderstanding of human dignity," said Heisse, a Madison personnel manager reached by telephone at her office. "Rape is not a crime of passion. It's a crime of violence."

Heisse said she believes most of those signing the petition for a special judicial election were angered by Simonson's remarks and not the sentence.

John Patrick Hunter, editorial page editor of the Madison Capital-Times, says the opposition of law-and-order conservatives to the sentence appears to have been tempered by support of the judge's remarks about sexual permissiveness.

He says the newspaper, one of two dailies in Madison, has received about 500 letters denouncing Simonson—about 90 per cent of them objecting to his "sexism." Many have come from out of state.

Assaults Inevitable?

"We haven't had more than five or so letters supporting the judge," said Hunter in an interview.

The Capital-Times has not taken issue with the sentence, but had editorially criticized what Hunter calls the judge's "stupid" comments.

Controversy is nothing new to Madison, the state capital and home of the 45,000-student University of Wisconsin. The local campus was the scene of some of the most volatile antiwar demonstrations of the late 1960s and the city has a reputation for being in the vanguard of social issues.

Simson fears that Madison is also in the vanguard of the trend toward sexual permissiveness. His theory that sexual assaults are an inevitable consequence has once again placed residents of the Wisconsin community in the front lines of a bitter social conflict.

NDP Applauded

I viewed some of the debate on Bill 33 (funding independent schools) in the legislature on June 13 and feel obliged to make a brief comment.

Congratulations to the members of the official opposition on their clear and forthright arguments for postponement of six months for second reading of this bill. Thoughtful, well-articulated statements were made to a frequently almost-emptied house.

The NDP members rightly insisted that such a fundamental issue as giving funding to religious and private schools from public dollars must first be debated openly by the public. Additional monies can only come from already overburdened taxpayers, unless Dr. Pat McGeer has his own private printing press to roll off the so-called new money.

It was a great pity that more members of the public were not in the house to witness the erosion of a 105-year tradition in this province — public dollars for public education.

While our public school system is indeed fraught with weaknesses, the inherent strengths are found in the system's ability to integrate children of many cultures and ethnic and racial backgrounds. Within the public school system there exists a climate of non-partisan, non-denominational egalitarianism. Can independent schools boast of these same qualities? Congratulations to the opposition on extremely well-made points followed by a well-deserved boycott of the second reading of Bill 33. Many citizens of this province will no doubt applaud their stand. — Mavis DeGirolamo, 140 Medana.

Wishful Thinking

I was deeply shocked to read your editorial Petty Politics, Tired Tactics. At first I thought perhaps the other Victoria newspaper had been delivered by mistake.

The policy of the NDP has been crystal clear on the subject of aid to independent schools: they base the policy on the fact that such legislation is a complete change in our social structure in B.C. and therefore should be submitted to the people in a referendum for their approval or rejection. The B.C. school trustees and the B.C. Federation of Teachers are both opposed to this legislation and Bennett is afraid to submit the problem to a referendum. He knows he would lose. This bill is the work of Pat McGeer and could possibly be part of the price for joining the coalition. The NDP has clearly stated its stand on this contentious bill and, as I see it, their withdrawal from the legislature, where the government has an overwhelming majority, is their only recourse to show their objection to the legislation and their insistence that such a basic change in our social structure should be submitted to the people for their approval or rejection. Even W. A. C. Bennett — the founder of the Socreds — was bitterly opposed to aid by the taxpayer for independent schools.

I am afraid your talk of the demise of the NDP is just wishful thinking. Recent polls show that the popular vote favors them and I would remind you that in the recent election their popular vote increased and they were only defeated by a coalition of the right, unlimited money and the backing of the news media with the sole exception of the Victoria Times which had the guts to support them.

I am not opposed to independent schools — in fact, I sent my two daughters to private schools but I am bitterly opposed to financing such institutions from the public treasury. I did not ask anyone to help me defray the costs of my free decision to send my daughters to such schools. I support the NDP 100 per cent in their stand and to speak of the demise of the NDP is unworthy of the Times. — M. P. B. Wrixon, 301-1701 Cedar Hill X Road.

Less Than Vermin

With great interest I have been reading about, and hearing of, the storm of protest following the distribution of pamphlets by the Victoria Pro-Life Society.

Months ago we, the public, were educated by concerned people about the brutalities of leg-hold traps. They used television, newspapers and graphic and pathetic pictures of unfortunate animals and birds caught in these things, to get their message across. These methods evoked no public outcry.

Again, concerning the seal hunt in the east, we were shown terrible scenes of pups being bludgeoned to death, and skinned. These scenes provoked no public outcry.

Similarly, when other people, upset about the brutalities and cruelties perpetrated against rats and other animals in laboratory experiments, described in detail these experiments in newspaper accounts, there was no public outcry against what they said.

However, when a group of citizens equally concerned about the brutalities going on in the abortion wards, and horrendous experiments performed on human babies, speaks up in protest against it, then the public outcry is fierce and violent and prolonged indeed.

I can only conclude that, to those members of the populace at least, the life of a human baby is of even less worth than that of vermin. — Mrs. A. Wenman, 1780 Keith Place.

Ottawa Richly Rewards 'Wholesalers' of Votes

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

There was a time in Canada, not as long ago as we might wish, when a vote could be bought for $2 worth of booze: rye in Ontario, whisky blanc in Quebec, rum in the Maritimes. This sort of retail dealing in votes is no longer done, or at least no longer admitted. Governments and political parties know it would be embarrassing to be caught.

But wholesaling is another matter. Just as the subtleties of the British class system once distinguished between a retail merchant, who could not be a gentleman, and a wholesaler, who might, Canadian political morality now condemns the retailer in votes; but rewards the wholesaler with high honors and rich rewards.

What's your pleasure? A $31,000-a-year seat on the Immigration Appeal Board? The dignified but easy-going career of a Citizenship Court judge? Membership in the Canadian Pension Commission — which is itself the pension to end all pensions? A berth in the Senate?

The route is clearly marked and already well-worn. Work for 10 or 20 years hard and successfully, delivering the votes of a ward, a riding, a city or a province. Help the federal Liberals rack up a profit at the polls and that profit will be honored and rewarded by the Government of Canada.

All of this is, of course, well known. And governments blithly carry along and get away with it and will continue to until Canadians get angry enough to put an end to it.

There is reason enough for anger. Democracy is not the inevitable lot of mankind. In the long sweep of human history democratic societies have been few, and they have been short-lived. And the spoils system, the election campaign cry of "jobs for the boys," has been a common contributor to their downfall.

Thanks to the spoils system the structure of government in Canada is riddled with what amounts to fraud. In the guise of watchdogs on behalf of the public, the voter and the taxpayer, we have in Canada innumerable boards, commissions, advisory councils and other supervisory bodies. In principal they are there to assure us that the elected politicians do not use the public purse to reward their own friends, and that the bureaucrats do not pursue unpoliced the inevitable bureaucratic drive toward empire-building and toward excluding the public from the public's own affairs.

No one would deny our need for such watchdogs. We have fresh evidence every day that government spending is out of control. We have fresh evidence every day that the bureaucrats go on building their empires and continually increasing their power to decide what is good for the public and to refuse the public access to the grounds for the decision. And governments go on rewarding their friends. A federal Liberal who wins his election becomes nothing more than a backbencher. But a much more pleasant reward may await the Liberal who loses.

The loser may become a watchdog. As a friend of the government he is rewarded, out of the public purse, with sinecure in which his most important duty is to look as if he is on guard against government use of the public purse to reward his friends. Or he is sent, as a purely political appointee, to a board of commission that purports to serve as a watertight bulkhead between pensions, or transport, or broadcasting, and politics. Solemnly insisting that immigation appeals should not become a political football, we load the Immigration Appeal Board with political football players.

Even in dollar terms all of this is costly. In an era in which government spending threatens to overpower and paralyze the sector of the economy that supports us all, we can ill afford this elaborate web of favoritism and patronage. Real watchdogs would be worth their price. But better to leave the flock unguarded than to send the leaders of the wolf pack to do the job.

The cost in public cynicism and disillusionment with electoral democracy is beyond count. And the cynicism and disillusionment are already far advanced. If they were not, we would long ago have been angry enough to demand that Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and his government clean up or be thrown out.

Sun, Sea, Beer Enough for Rich Islanders

By PETER DEELEY

MELBOURNE — A $50 million skyscraper in Melbourne; multi-million dollar investments on the Australian stock market; a $17 million shipping line and a prestige airline.

A healthy portfolio, you might think, when it's all owned by the 3,500 people who live on a tiny Pacific island just eight miles square, about 2,000 miles off the Australian coast.

It's called Nauru, scarcely a blob on the world map, just south of the equator. If you were looking for the richest people on earth, you would find them here, not in some oil-rich Middle Eastern sheikdom.

Their wealth comes from one source — phosphate. How it got there is a matter of debate. Some say it's the product of hundreds of years of nesting by migratory birds. But the Nauruans who don't like the nickname "bird shit tower" which Melbourne people have given their new 52-floor piece of real estate — maintain that the central plateau where the phosphate lies is the result of ancient volcanic eruptions.

The story of Nauru itself is not unlike a fable: A nation of happy-go-lucky islanders who suddenly found themselves sitting on the richest heap of muck in the world.

By the mid-1990s, if phosphate maintains its current world prices, they will be worth around $2.6 billion. Already, the trust fund set up for the islanders out of phosphate sales is worth $212 million.

The island's annual earnings from this natural resource is about $136 million and the Nauruans do not pay income tax.

Before you book your plane ticket, wait! Right now it may sound like a paradise on earth where the biggest decision of the day is often whether to go swimming, fishing or just stay in the shade drinking cold Australian beer.

Cinderella Story?

However, there's a catch — a very big one. Nauru is a bit like Cinderella. By the mid-1990s their golden carriage will turn back into a pumpkin. By then there will be no phosphate left. By the year 2000 the island will probably be a deserted hulk.

Nauru's problems are classically symptomatic of an industrialized world which has ripped the wealth from the earth and whose prosperity depends solely on nature's fickle bounty.

The problem facing the Nauruan government is how to invest their present riches so that the people will be able to live on the proceeds when the clock strikes midnight.

At present the per capita income of the population is $25,000 per annum — the highest in the world. Yet unless their present wealth is wisely invested, they'll be paupers when the ball is over.

In 1968, when Nauru became a republic (the world's smallest) the independent state set up the Nauru Phosphate Royalties Trust to invest their money against the apocalypse.

There's already about $220 million in the four separate funds the government administers under the trust. The main fund is designed to meet the island's running costs and to give the people an income when the phosphate runs out. Another is to compensate Nauruans whose land has been eaten up by the mining. None of the money from these two funds will be made available before 1995.

A third fund pays for house building and renovation, and the last one is for rehabilitating the vast moon-like craters which scar the centre of the island where mining takes place.

Earnings Put Aside

Each year a proportion of the money earned from phosphate is set aside for the funds. At the moment two million tons a year are mined and exported — mainly to Australian farmers.

Australia is paying around $35 a ton for the phosphate. But the excavation costs are only about $10 a ton, so Nauru needs to produce only about 500,000 tons a year to clear its overhead.

Phosphate deposits were first discovered on the island in 1900 and mining began six years later. The British Phosphate Commissioners had taken 60 million tons by the time the island became self-ruling and BPC interests were brought out by the government. Since then, another ten million tons have been extracted.

All attempts by the Nauruans to provide an alternative which will keep the island alive beyond the year 2000 have so far failed.

The four-jet Air Nauru fleet which covers the Pacific between Hong Kong and Fiji is a loss-maker; tourists are not likely to come to an island whose hinterland looks like an auto wrecker's yard, and Nauru is too far off the main shipping routes to become a major harbor or port-of-call.

The Nauruans decided that property investment and the stock market were the only hedges against future poverty. They own Nauru House, a new office block that towers above Melbourne's skyline and expect an annual income by 1980 of $5 million from this. And they are looking around for more real estate investments.

There are two other alternatives open to the Nauruans: to slow down the production of phosphate or to find another island.

President Bernard Dowiyogo, who was recently installed after a bloodless palace coup, is still reportedly considering a plan which would give the island another ten years of phosphate life.

More likely however is the prospect that Nauru will buy another Pacific island and move in lock, stock and barrel.

Offered Islands

That's not as unlikely as it sounds, in this part of the world.

The Australian government offered them two islands off the mainland — one of which the Naurans accepted only to find it had later been taken off the market.

The Naurans will not want for much, wherever they go. So far money has not gone to their heads. They are easy-going and enjoy the sun, the sea and beer.

If you thought that by 1995 you might be worth about $850,000 (the projected per capita share from the phosphate spree) would you be looking for much else?

School Aid: What's The Rush?

THE SUN
An Editorial

Why is the Social Credit government in such a rush to push through its legislation for financial support of independent schools?

One hundred and five years the province has been without it, and now in 1977, in a year of supposed restraint under a government of hold-the-line, balance-the-budget, cut-the-frills fiscal conservatism, there is this almost reckless haste to pass Bill 33 which by one estimate — and there is no precise calculation; which is a concern of its own — will cost the public between $30 million and $35 million in its first year and which stirs deep and dangerously divisive emotions throughout the British Columbia community.

Moreover it is legislation that is not at all clearly understood or even clearly welcomed by its supporters let alone its opponents — with the list of those philosophically opposed to state support for independent schools being substantial. To name some, the B.C. Teachers Federation, the B.C. School Trustees Association, the B.C. Home and School Association, the Vancouver School Board and — according to a poll by the BCTF — a majority of adults in Vancouver.

What all this says is that there was a great deal of sense in the amendment proposed by Liberal leader Gordon Gibson — and shortsightedly defeated — to refer the bill to the legislature's standing committee on health, education and human resources for a month where public soundings can be taken.

Yes, there is logic in the argument of Bill 33's supporters that parents who choose to send their children to independent schools are paying twice — to support both the independent schools through fees and the public schools through taxes. And, yes, it is true that if their 22,000-odd children were in the public system, the total tax bill for education would increase by maybe as much as $35 million.

There is as well the philosophical argument that parents in a free society should have the right to educate their children as they see fit — and why shouldn't the parent who wants his child educated according to a set of religious precepts not get the same support as the parent who doesn't want religious instruction in the schools?

But against those positions are equally fundamental questions:

Is religious instruction something that the state should be underwriting through the school system or should it remain a personal responsibility of parents?

Do we want to use the school system to separate children because of the religious beliefs of their parents? Has not the argument for a public, secular system been that it would be a unifying, integrating community force?

Will tax support of independent schools turn out to be a supplement to the fees already charged at independent schools, enabling them to provide a better, more well-heeled service than the public system can afford?

Is this really a social spending priority in 1977, considering how curtailed spending has been for much needed special education programs in the public system for children with learning handicaps and for immigrant children?

Is this an unwelcome precedent being set, opening the door to a potentially explosive development of so-called independent schools, leaving behind a shrinking public school system for the children of B.C.'s poorest and most politically voiceless?

And as for those parents who say they have drifted off to private schools because the public system's standards are too low, why have they not taken political action to improve the system rather than opting to send their children into a private system for which they now want public support?

There are those who point out that British Columbia is the only province which does not financially support an independent or separate school system. There are those who reply that B.C. has been fortunate to avoid this fracturing and that it has the unique opportunity to create something new — pluralistic schools offering different programs, different styles but within a single public system.

This is an issue on which the community should be heard, not angrily polarized. Referring the legislation to committee would be an act of wise statesmanship by the government.

Margaret: Who Used Whom?

By SANDER VANOCUR
Washington Post

Watching Sandy Hill interview Margaret Trudeau on ABC's Good Morning America the other day produced a sensation akin to Oscar Levant's answer when asked if he ever watched Dinah Shore on television. "No," he answered, "I'm a diabetic."

I have not seen so many dimples displayed since Shirley Temple signed her first long-term contract at Twentieth Century-Fox. In the characteristic fashion of the emerging school of gush interviewing, Hill let Trudeau get away with murder.

Trudeau recently separated from her husband, Pierre, who, when he is not minding their three kids, moonlights as Prime Minister of Canada. She used most of the interview to complain about the treatment she has received from the press.

Here is part of the exchange between Hill and Trudeau:

Trudeau: "I tend to keep the press at a distance, you know, and I don't really react to what they say. I react to what I feel, more."

Hill: "That takes a great deal of strength because sometimes the barbs are very pointed."

Trudeau: "Yes, well, not only pointed, they can be very vicious and very hurtful and damaging. But I think I've learned a lot of lessons about the press and the ability they have to use people in order to sell papers and make sensational stories. And I'm very offended, sort of insulted, that they would treat Pierre and I in the way they have."

It was that way throughout the first part of the interview without Hill challenging her once on the matter of who used whom. Did the press really use Trudeau all that much or did she use the press?

TRUDEAU . . . flaunted it

No one exactly forced Trudeau to say that she had a cute behind and nice legs. Or that she liked to put on a garter belt because it turned her on.

But Trudeau did not seek to be discreet about her private life. She flaunted it, in Canada and in the United States. And it has not hurt her budding career as a photographer one damn bit. Why did she think she was invited to appear on Good Morning America — because she is Canada's answer to Richard Avedon?

She was on the show because she has become a celebrity. And she has become a celebrity because she has conducted herself in a manner that did not quite fit the norms that we associate with the conduct of women married to national leaders. The press did not do anything to Trudeau that she had not already done to herself.

Hill should have called her on that score. That would not have constituted rudeness; it simply would have been good interviewing.

But she did not. Apart from one solid question as to whether Trudeau thought she was abandoning her children, she threw puff balls that the lady from Ottawa just plain knocked out of the park.

FRASER 'SEWER' FEARED

RICHMOND (CP) — The Fraser River is in danger of becoming an open sewer, delegates at a conference co-sponsored by the Fraser River Coalition and the Douglas College Institute of Environmental Studies agreed Sunday.

The three-day conference, attended by approximately 125 people, was held at the Douglas College campus in this Vancouver suburb to find ways of accelerating the campaign to save the river from further pollution by development.

Former Richmond MLA Harold Steves told delegates the proposed federal-provincial study of the river was "a perfect example of the government fiddling while Rome burns."

"And if they don't declare a complete moratorium on development and put in some tight curbs on pollution-causing industry, there will be so much oil and sludge in the Fraser that they will have a river that burns.";

Dr. Barry Leach of the college's environmental studies department, said he hoped the coalition will make larger gains in saving the Fraser than separate groups concerned with marinas, fish or recreation could have achieved.

"We've had to suffer through under-use of resources, abuse of water and land and of course a lack of co-ordination, imagination and initiative on the part of all three levels of government," he said.

Leach said the joint study by the two governments had been criticized by delegates as "too little, too late", and if the government was really serious "they would have done something like this a decade, or two decades earlier."

A program outlined by delegates for preservation and rehabilitation of the river included: a moratorium on development hazardous to the environment; pollution penalties in the form of fines, higher taxes and user fees for industries in the area; investigation of political appointments to the river's harbor commission to end what was termed the "pro-industry" slant of such bodies; a recommendation to the governments that data on land use and environmental conditions be created and made available to the public, and rehabilitation by the industries responsible for damaged areas of the Fraser estuary and Delta.

Delta Closing Plant, 600 Face No Jobs

RICHMOND (CP) — A United Fisherman and Allied Workers Union spokesman said Sunday at least 600 seasonal workers will be out of work because Delta Food Processors Ltd. is winding down operations at its two local fish plants and rice mill.

Morris Anderson, union shoreworkers vice-president and truck driver at Queen Charlotte Fisheries Ltd. in this Vancouver suburb, said Sunday that he and 21 other production workers were laid-off Friday and eight maintenance workers will be gone Monday.

"It's sure a tragedy, 500 cannery workers and probably another 100 workers at other plants won't be called to work this season," he said.

Anderson, a year-round employee for nine years, said he received 24-hour lay-off notice Friday following months of rumor about an imminent closure.

Company president Harold Gavin refused comment Sunday.

Anderson said Canada Rice Mills in Richmond and Bingham Fisheries Ltd. on Vancouver Harbor, both owned by Delta Food Processors, are also closing.

The union wants a government investigation into the matter and met Jim Nielsen, environment minister and Richmond MLA, Saturday to discuss it.

Union president Jack Nichol said the company is a profitable one and "their decision to quit now is nothing short of scandalous."

"Queen Charlotte is smothered by its own corporate bureaucracy as one component of a giant food conglomerate and its failure to operate this year is a shameful disregard for its corporate responsibility to the industry, the community and to the workers who have produced the profits over the years."

MDs Reject Offer, Seek AIB Maximum

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Medical Association, which has turned down a government offer of a 5.1 per cent fee increase, is returning to the bargaining table asking for the full settlement allowed by the Anti-Inflation Board and other benefits, according to the BCMA News.

The News, a medical-political tabloid published by former Surrey Alderman Dr. John O'Brien-Bell, says the negotiating team has been instructed to ask for:

—A larger allowance for increased overheads;

—More money for an education fund, used to help doctors get extra training;

—A professional fee increase "in keeping with that permissible under AIB;" and —Removal of an increase in disability benefits from the professional increase.

The team was also instructed that the BCMA is not prepared to modify definitions of different kinds of office visits — complete physicals, partial physicals and extended visits for counselling.

Arbutus Facility Eyed

The Saanich Police Association is considering using the former home of Arbutus Crafts on West Saanich Road as a recreational facility.

The association proposes using the main floor and basement for recreation facilities for police members and also a museum tracing the police department's history in Saanich.

The upper floor of the original building and the new wing would be available for rental to community organizations.

Ald. Fred Severson reports the association will spend $5,000 on renovations if a two-year lease is granted.

Severson, chairman of the lands, planning and housing committee, says the association's bid is being considered by lands commissioner Frank Harris, along with a similar request from a local handicapped group.

Severson says he hopes both organizations will be able to use the building, which was vacated when Arbutus Crafts moved into the Garth Homer Achievement Centre on Darwin Avenue in May.

Miners Take Prizes

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Teams from Western Mines Ltd. near Campbell River on Vancouver Island and Kaiser Resources Ltd. of Sparwood, in southeastern British Columbia took prizes during the weekend at the annual provincial mine rescue and first aid competition.

Western Mines won the underground rescue and Kaiser captured the open-pit mine competition.

First prize in the first aid competition was won by a team from the B.C. Forest Products Ltd. division in the northern town of Mackenzie.

Winning teams will represent the province in the national competitions next weekend in Yellowknife, N.W.T.

Miners and first aid workers from 14 companies competed in the simulated rescues held in an open field.

CYPRESS TIP MOTH KILLING CEDARS

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's agriculture department issued a warning Friday about cypress tip moth, whose caterpillars are attacking cypress and cedar trees throughout the Lower Mainland.

Damage to the tree first appears in late April or early May but the tree may appear entirely brown and dry within three weeks.

The department recommends spraying with Diazinon 12½ per cent and Cygon 2E in April when the caterpillars emerge from the needles to form cocoons.

The sprays are also effective in June after the adult moth appears and in July after the hatching of the eggs.

Advance Saves Duncan Centre

DUNCAN — A $1,500 advance on its share of this year's United Way campaign has saved the Valley Native Friendship Centre here.

The advance was authorized Saturday at a meeting of Cowichan United Way directors. The advance will be charged against the $2,500 earmarked for the friendship centre out of funds from this fall's campaign, campaign chairman Mike Coleman explained.

The friendship centre considered closing down because funding from the federal and provincial governments has been delayed.

Avast There, Mateys!

NOMINATIONS DRAW 200 PCs

MILL BAY — A turnout of about 200, an increase of nearly 170 from 1974, showed up at Saturday's Progressive Conservative nominating meeting at the Mill Bay Arena and named Duncan teacher Don Taylor to again run in the next federal election.

Taylor, who will run in the new riding of Cowichan-Malahat-The Islands, lost by 2,200 votes to former NDP leader Tommy Douglas in the 1974 election when both ran in the now-defunct riding of Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands. Douglas has said he will not run again.

Although figures were not available Saturday, Taylor defeated a tough opponent in Ken Paskin, mayor of Duncan and chairman of the Cowichan Regional Board. A total of 181 of the 200 voted.

UPLANDS

Custom built for the owners to the highest standards and completed only nine months ago, this quality residence is regretfully offered to the market due to a transfer to the East.

All on one floor, and suited to a discerning family requiring two bedrooms and a den, large entertainment areas (both inside and out) and other luxury appointments.

It is not often we can offer a totally modern home in the Uplands, and this fine example of contemporary construction developed to such standards is truly a pleasure to view.

Extremely well located on a cul-de-sac facing Uplands Park and enjoying complete privacy, this property is irreplaceable at $168,500.

"For years you could be sure if it was a Westinghouse appliance. Starting July 1, 1977, you can be just as confident with White-Westinghouse."

Derek Powell
President of White-Westinghouse

The quote is from Derek Powell, President of the White-Westinghouse Division of WCI Canada Limited.

"White-Westinghouse will be, in part, a new name to Canadian consumers," Mr. Powell went on. "There are bound to be some questions, so let me try to provide the answers."

Why 'White-Westinghouse' after July 1, 1977?

"The answer is that all Westinghouse major appliances made after July 1 will bear the trade mark White-Westinghouse. The reason they'll have this trade mark on them is that in 1975 our parent company, White Consolidated Industries, Inc. purchased the worldwide rights to the patents, know-how and trade marks for the Westinghouse line of major appliances. As a result, WCI Canada is the only company in Canada which will have the right to continue manufacturing Westinghouse appliances based on such patents and know how."

Why not continue to use the 'Westinghouse' name? Why add 'White' in front of it?

"We added 'White' to 'Westinghouse' to make it clear to everyone that after July 1, the Westinghouse major appliance line will be manufactured and backed by us– the White-Westinghouse Division of WCI Canada Limited."

What about service and warranty?

"If you're the owner of a Westinghouse major appliance that's still in-warranty or if you make a purchase from existing inventories with the trade mark 'Westinghouse' on it, you are assured of fulfillment of warranties, full service and parts backup. Just contact your Westinghouse appliance dealer.

When you purchase a new White-Westinghouse major appliance it will be backed by RESCO, one of the largest parts and service organizations in Canada and it is available through your White-Westinghouse major appliance dealer. If you own a Westinghouse major appliance that is out-of-warranty RESCO will even supply parts and service for it. Arrangements have also been made for in-warranty service on Westinghouse appliances manufactured prior to July 1, 1977."

Then my Westinghouse major appliance dealer is very important?

"He's the key. He'll see to it that your needs are satisfied. And we at White-Westinghouse are fully behind him."

What about the White-Westinghouse product line? What's distinguishing? What should we look for?

"We're really proud to be able to assure everyone that our new White-Westinghouse major appliances will continue in every way to provide the kind of quality, reliability and exclusive features Canadian consumers have come to associate with the famous Westinghouse trade mark. White-Westinghouse is the only company that can provide this continuity.

In ranges, we'll have a complete line of self-clean, continuous clean and easy-clean products. With advanced cooking features like glass top cooking, automatic locking oven doors and speed broiling in the largest oven manufactured in Canada.

In refrigerators, we'll offer everything from the 22 cu. ft. "Frost Free Continental" 3-door Side-by-Side to a manual 10 cu. ft. refrigerator.

And then there's our full line of washers and dryers. The 18 lb. top load washers have extra-gentle "hand wash" agitators for delicate things. The exclusive front load, tumble action space mates washer/dryer pair gives you the greatest energy savings available and can be installed under a counter or stacked in a closet.

I could say a lot more about our dishwashers, freezers, room air conditioners, dehumidifiers and humidifiers, but I think you get my point. To sum up we will offer a complete line of quality White-Westinghouse major appliances continuing the Westinghouse line in Canada."

Where and when can people see White-Westinghouse appliances?

"After July 1, 1977, we'll be offering White-Westinghouse through major appliance dealers and principally through participating Westinghouse dealers."

That's the way White-Westinghouse President Derek Powell puts it.

If you're in the market for a major appliance, after July 1, 1977 why not visit your dealer and check out the excellent line of White-Westinghouse appliances he's talking about.

You'll find the White-Westinghouse line offers you everything that's new in major appliances plus all the features and dependability you've been used to.

From now on it's White-Westinghouse.

CBC Staff Unaware of Crime Show

TORONTO (CP) — When the CBC presented two 90-minute documentaries on organized crime called Connections on June 12 and 13, the shows were as much a surprise to CBC staff members as to the persons whose activities were described.

Secrecy was so tight that only current affairs chief Peter Herrndorf, who approved the project, knew what the investigating team was working on.

Bill MacAdam, 38, who produced the $300,000 program along with Martyn Burke, 33, and research chief Jim Dubro, 30, said in a recent interview the secrecy was necessary not only to compile information, but to protect the lives of the investigators.

All the material used to produce the program was labelled with the code word Commerce whenever it left the producers' cramped office on the sixth floor of CBC headquarters.

The office is still locked from the inside, as it was throughout the three-year investigation. Not even Herrndorf was allowed inside.

CBC staff members thought the research team was working on a TV special on commerce, MacAdam said.

"We figured the idea of a film on commerce sounded so boring that no one would ask any awkward questions or get too interested in us."

The project was conceived in late 1974 after MacAdam had completed a documentary on the activities of Canada's espionage departments and the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) in this country.

MacAdam said: "Frankly I thought the idea of the Mafia in Toronto was just a myth at first. But as Jim and I started to dig around, we realized they were here after all."

MacAdam and Dubro, a former literature teacher at the University of Toronto, researched newspaper clippings, books on crime, records of the Quebec crime commission and other sources of information.

They compiled a numbered, cross-indexed file which eventually contained 29,000 names connected with the investigation.

"We would like to have used a computer but that would have risked the information leaking out, so we kept our own card system behind locked doors."

Ottawa Vote In Summer Of 1978?

KELOWNA (CP) — Federal Fitness Minister Iona Campagnolo predicted Saturday that a general election probably won't come before June or July of next year.

"That would be four years and the usual time for an election," said the Liberal MP for Skeena.

Campagnolo, speaking in an interview as she visited the city with other members of a federal Liberal caucus tour, said she has considered Quebec Premier Rene Levesque the real leader of the opposition in Canada for the past seven years.

"Because when the moment of truth comes, for Canada it will be Pierre Trudeau and Rene Levesque," she said.

No Bar to This Sales Approach

OLYMPIA, WASH. (AP) — Frustrated by the resistance of local neighborhoods whenever the state tries to find a place to put a mini-prison, representative Ron Hanna has come up with a new sales approach.

Without mentioning any specifics until the end, Hanna put out a tongue-in-cheek news release Friday offering a "good lead on a business proposition'- that would be worth $2 million to the local economy and offer about 80 permanent jobs for local residents.

"What's more," said the Tacoma Democrat who heads the house institutions committee, "the business creates no pollution or health hazard and only requires about 17 to 25 acres, which will be kept well manicured."

"The opportunity is more or less in the hospitality field," quips Hanna. "Accommodations for 144 people will be offered along with complete dining and recreational facilities. For those of the guests that so desire there will also be educational opportunities."

The "hospitality" accommodations are actually three 144-bed maximum security mini-prisons, authorized by the legislature. The department of social and health services says only one city has even nibbled at the idea of hosting criminals. That was Raymond, which since has backed out.

U.S. Spraying For Budworm

SEATTLE (AP — The United States forest service has begun spraying the insecticide Sevin-4 on 460,000 acres of trees in the Wenatchee and Okanogan national forests in a battle against the spruce budworm

The spraying, weather permitting, will continue for the next three weeks, the most vulnerable period for the pest, which eats fir trees.

Sevin-4, according to Alan Gibbs, project information officer for the Wenatchee national forest, is a biodegradeable insecticide with a life of 14 days. It doesn't get into the food chain and isn't harmful to humans or animals.

However, it endangers bees, and the forest service is helping beekeepers either cover or move their hives.

Cost of the entire project is $3.4 million.

Propaganda, Say Bosses As Gov't Tests Workers

TRACY, Que. (CP) — More than two weeks after 1,200 workers at Quebec Iron and Titanium Corp., occupied the company's giant iron smelter in this industrial town 40 miles east of Montreal, the two sides say they are no closer to reaching a settlement.

A Quebec government-sponsored medical examination of the workers has run up against company accusations that the doctors "are more interested in spreading Communist propaganda than in checking the workers."

Jean Frere, QIT director of administration, says the company has decided in advance that it will not accept the findings of the government doctors.

Frere said QIT is bothered by photographs of Norman Bethune hanging on the walls of a clinic set up here for the examinations. Bethune was a Canadian physician who helped the Communists during the Chinese civil war and became a national hero to the Chinese.

The Confederation of National Trade Unions, which has been supporting the local union in Tracy, has said it also opposed the physicians' political views.

Gilles Lamoureux, president of the CNTU-affiliated Union of Iron and Titanium Workers, says the doctors are brilliant, whatever their personal views.

Dr. Bernard Poiliot, who heads the 10-member team of government doctors, says their political views are irrelevant.

He said ose of the most important tests — a spirometric examination which gauges the workers' lung capacity — has been carried out on equipment borrowed from the federal health and welfare department under the supervision of federal officials, assuring that test results will be accurate.

Lamoureux says: "The company is just trying to distract attention from the real issue." The real issue, according to the union, is working conditions at the QIT smelter.

Reporters given a union-guided tour of the occupied plant saw an inch-thick layer of anthracite dust covering the foundry floor. Workers say that when the plant is in operation the dust is dispersed into the air, making it difficult to see and breathe.

BELL MOVES 220 TO HULL

HULL, Que. (CP) — Bell Canada has announced it is transferring 220 head-office employees from Montreal to Hull.

Jean Gerin, a Bell Canada spokesman, said the 220 jobs are in company services "that are in almost constant contact with the federal government and the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission."

Hull municipal officials said the Bell transfer will reverse the declining number of private-sector jobs in Hull.

ALLMAND DISHES IT OUT . . . HOT

MONTREAL (CP) — Who says Warren Allmand doesn't serve the people.

The Minister of Indian and Northern affairs spent Father's Day cooking up a storm at Darwin's restaurant-bar, a downtown hangout where Sunday brunches are whipped into shape by different guest chefs each week.

Sporting a light blue T-shirt, a floppy white chef's hat and a toothy necklace, Allmand barked orders at the kitchen regulars as reindeer steak sizzled on the grill.

While John Welch, the minister's right-hand man, did most of the cooking, Allmand arranged the aesthetically pleasing plates of smoked Arctic char, reindeer steak and cauliflower a la cashew for more than 150 hungry patrons in the bar downstairs.

"It was great, just great," said one customer, his wife nodding emphatically. "First time we've ever had reindeer steak."

"Yeah," his wife added, "and we were glad to know it wasn't Dancer and Dasher."

Allmand, who admitted that "John and I pop in here for a drink occasionally," said the invitation came as a pleasant surprise — as did the presence of two reporters.

HUBERT GREEN

DISPLAY OF COURAGE BY U.S. OPEN WINNER

Green Shrugs Off Death Threat

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Hubert Green said he choked his way to the 77th United States Open golf championship. But the record shows he displayed courage under conditions that would have shaken a lesser soul.

Green, 31, who had captured 11 tour events but was branded with the stigma of never winning a major golf title, faced the thickest pressure of his life standing on the 18th tee.

There was a death threat hanging over his head. There was the 449-yard, par-four finishing hole that had destroyed challenger after challenger. And there was the pressure of throwing it all away by doing something stupid—which Green did.

Green needed only a bogey for a one-stroke victory over Lou Graham, who had finished his final round.

The Birmingham, Ala. native drove the ball perfectly but then did the very thing he didn't want to do.

"I told myself not to knock it in the left bunker and that's what I did," said Green. "Then I told myself not to chunk the bunker shot and that's what I did, leaving the darn thing 40 feet short. I could hear everybody laugh, 'Well, looks like we're going to have a playoff.'

"Then I had a four-footer, uphill and straight. That's the hardest kind of putt for me to handle because I can't hit it straight. I did and the ball kind of jumped in the corner of the hole."

Green added: "I choked, but we all choke in the majors. Everybody just choked more than I did."

Green's bogey on the last hole gave him a final-round even par 70 for a two-under 278 over Southern Hills Country Club's demanding 6,873 yards. Graham, the 1975 Open champion, shot a final-round 68 with a 31 on the back side for a 279.

Green won $45,000 and Graham $23,500.

The drama unfolded on the 15th tee box, where Green owned a shaky two-shot lead over the hard-pressing Graham. Green was informed by the U.S. Golf Association officials and the Tulsa police that the FBI in Oklahoma City had received a threat on his life.

Green shook off the telephone call as a crank then hooked his tee shot into the trees on the 407-yard, par-four hole. He recovered for par, then birdied the next hole.

"It's a shame that had to happen," said Green. "I don't believe it bothered me. It was out of my hands. There was nothing I could do."

With a small army of plainclothesmen and police joining Green's gallery, he parred 17 to set up his scrambling bogey on the final hole.

Graham later commented: "I was actually pulling for him (Green) on that last hole. I knew what he was going through and I also knew how much it would have hurt him if he had blown it."

Green's round included three birdies and three bogeys. Weiskopf ended with a one-over par 71 to finish third at 281. Young Tom Purtzer moved within a shot at one time and faded to a 72 and fourth place at 282.

Gary Player, hoping to join Jack Nicklaus as the second two-time Grand Slam winner, blew to a 75 to finish tied at 285 with Nicklaus.

Green was remarkably consistent with his irons most of the week, hitting only two bunkers in his rounds of 69-67-72-70.

"I survived the Open," said Green. "You don't win it, you just survive it. You don't make any mistakes and get away with it because of the rough and the tremendous courses they play the Open on."

The victory clinched a position on the U.S. Ryder Cup Team, earned Green a 10-year exemption on the PGA tour, qualified him for the World Series of Golf, clinched a spot on the World Cup Team, and swelled his pocket book to $874,193 for his career.

INDIANS TAKE TWO AS ROBINSON FIRED

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jeff Torborg walked into his new office with a big smile on his face and said: "That's the way to manage. I didn't have to do a darn thing."

The new manager of Cleveland Indians was relishing his debut Sunday in which his American League baseball team closed out a four-game sweep of Detroit Tigers with 4-2 and 4-0 victories.

The enthusiasm in the Cleveland clubhouse and the bubbling happiness of Torborg was in direct contrast to the bewildering series of controversies and mysteries which dogged Frank Robinson, the man fired as Cleveland's manager Sunday morning.

Another reason for Torborg's happiness was a phone call from Robinson moments after the second game ended. "He congratulated me and said 'Nice going.' That means a lot to me."

Torborg, Robinson's good friend and a member of his coaching staff since major league baseball's first black manager took over in October 1974, wasn't so enthusiastic earlier in the day when team president Ted Bonda and general manager Phil Seghi announced the decision.

"I have mixed emotions, to be honest," Torborg said. "Having been brought in as a coach by Frank, starting a program together, I find this difficult."

Yank Owner Denies Firing of Martin

DETROIT (AP) — George Steinbrenner, owner of New York Yankees, denied today he has fired manager Billy Martin.

"There's nothing happening. Martin hasn't been fired," Steinbrenner told the Associated Press from his hotel room here. He said he had no plans to call any news conferences or make any announcements.

Martin expressed surprise at Steinbrenner's presence in Detroit. When asked if he thought he might be fired, he replied: "Not to my knowledge."

He said he has not held any team meetings with players or front-office people since he and outfielder Reggie Jackson exchanged angry words last Saturday in Boston. When asked if he had talked to Jackson since the incident, Martin said: "Yes. Everything's all right."

Martin also said he felt his dispute with Jackson was not cause for firing. "If it is, every manager in baseball is in jeopardy."

Gabe Paul, president of the Yankees, issued a string of "no comment" statements, capped by: "I have no comment about no comment."

Martin endured constantly strained relations with Steinbrenner and with high-priced outfielder Reggie Jackson since becoming manager during the 1975 season. Last year, his first full season, the Yanks won the American League pennant before losing four straight games to Cincinnati in the World Series.

A nationally-televised confrontation with Jackson in Boston last Saturday, which nearly resulted in punches being thrown before Martin was restrained, was the greatest conflict Martin has had with the Yanks—but only the latest in a series of battles he has had as a manager.

Similar incidents with players and owners led to his being fired as manager of Minnesota Twins, Detroit Tigers and Texas Rangers.

Martin had to be restrained by coaches from coming to blows with Jackson during the second game of the disastrous Boston visit in which the Red Sox swept the three games 9-4, 10-4 and 11-1, clouting 16 home runs in the process.

Martin removed Jackson during the sixth inning of Saturday's loss at Fenway Park, claiming the right fielder had not hustled after a bloop double by Jim Rice.

When Jackson reached the dugout, he and Martin exchanged words and the 165-pound Martin had to be held back from going after the slugger, who was signed as a free agent last November to a multiyear, $2.9-million contract.

On Sunday the Red Sox, behind the three-hit pitching of Ferguson Jenkins, completed a three-game sweep over the Yankees with an 11-1 victory. The Sox moved 2½ games ahead of the Yankees with their 12th victory in their last 14 starts.

In the American League West, Chicago White Sox took two games from Oakland A's, 2-1, and 5-1, and moved two percentage points ahead of Minnesota Twins.

In other games, Cleveland Indians swept a doubleheader from Detroit Tigers 4-2 and 4-0, Toronto Blue Jays defeated Baltimore Orioles 7-1, Kansas City Royals nipped Minnesota Twins 8-7, California Angels blanked Milwaukee Brewers 7-0 and Seattle Mariners edged Texas Rangers 2-1.

In the National League Sunday, Los Angeles Dodgers defeated Chicago Cubs 3-1 in a battle of division leaders. Los Angeles now lead the West Division by 7½ games over Cincinnati Reds who lost to Montreal Expos 8-4. In other games, Philadelphia Phillies defeated Atlanta Braves 4-2, San Francisco Giants took two from Pittsburgh Pirates 8-0 and 8-6, New York Mets topped Houston Astros 8-2 and San Diego Padres defeated St. Louis Cardinals 6-2. Chicago holds a 5½ game margin over Philadelphia in the National League East.

All But Jimmy Sing Together

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Forty-four former Wimbledon tennis champions linked arms and sang Auld Lang Syne on the famous centre court today at the start of the centenary All-England championships.

The oldest of them, American-born Elizabeth Ryan, 85, was on crutches.

Toto Brugnon, 80, one of France's famed Four Musketeers, shuffled along with a cane.

The champions, greeted one by one with cheers by the crowd, were presented with centenary commemoration medals by the Duke of Kent, president of the All-England Club.

But one Wimbledon champion who is in London did not join the parade. Jimmy Connors, winner of the men's title in 1974, stayed in the dressing room without sending any explanation.

The champions were entertained at lunch before the centre court parade. An official of the All-England Club said he saw Connors three days ago and said no reply had been received to his invitation although Connors promised he would send one later that day.

"We have still not heard from him," the spokesman said.

Connors, top seeded at Wimbledon, injured his left thumb in practice over a week ago and was forced to pull out of a tournament last Tuesday at Queen's club—the final Wimbledon warmup.

Wimbledon officials, sometimes accused of being too conservative and inflexible, have fallen over backwards to give Connors, the biggest drawing card in the game for the last three years, the chance to play this year.

Traditionally, the first round of the men's singles is played on the opening day today, and Connors was due to meet Richard Lewis of Britain on the No. 2 court.

But over the weekend, Wimbledon referee Fred Hoyle announced Connors would be allowed to play his first-round match on Tuesday instead.

MAKING BID to provide husband-wife entry in national lawn bowling final, Jim McGregor, Jr. of Victoria delivers bowl in provincial men's singles final Sunday at Victoria West greens against veteran Tom Jarvis (in background) of Vancouver. McGregor's wife, Carol, captured B.C. women's singles crown on previous weekend and Jim was attempting to also earn place on team for national event at Edmonton in August. Jarvis wrecked bid by scoring 21-17 victory in Sunday's final.

SLIM DIFFERENCE IN ONE AS COURAGEOUS WINS TWO

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Courageous, with Atlanta Braves owner Ted Turner at the helm, made a late surge to edge out Enterprise by two feet, completing a two-race sweep Sunday in the second day of preliminary races for America's Cup defenders.

In the first race, Courageous got a one second jump at the start and stretched that lead to 44 seconds rounding the first mark. At the finish, it was Courageous by 45 seconds.

The second race was much closer, with Courageous beating Enterprise by one-half of a second after being behind for most of the race.

The New York Yacht Club's Race Committee said Courageous won by two feet in winds that were between 15 and 18 knots.

Courageous, the successful defender of the America's Cup in 1974, also won one of two practice starts against Enterprise on Saturday.

The first race, which began shortly before noon, was run on a 13.5-mile course in eight- to 10-knot winds out of the southwest. The course for the second race was shortened to 12.5 miles.

Turner took an early lead at the start and held on all the way to the finish.

On Saturday, Enterprise, skippered by Lowell North of San Diego, Calif., split a pair of races with Independence.

Independence and Courageous will race today.

Canada Captures Fourth Home Win

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's game plan worked to perfection Saturday night in the final game of the Intercontinental Cup basketball series.

Trailing 37-33 at halftime, Canada rallied in the second half to score an 80-65 win over Belgium.

The victory gave Canada a 4-6 record.

"Our game plan was to go to the inside and draw fouls," Canadian coach Jack Donohue said.

Midway through the second half, Belgium lost starting centre Roger Marien and forward Imre Nyitrai through fouls.

Canada's 7-foot-1 centre Jim Zoet of Toronto took advantage of his height to drive over top of the shorter Belgiur forwards. He emerged as the game's top scorer with 29 points. Other Canadian scorers were Leo Rautins, also of Toronto, with 15 points, and Tom Skerlak with 10.

Veteran Corky Bell, who played high school basketball in New York City, was Belgium's top scorer with 28 points.

"I'm quite pleased the way the tournament turned out," Donohue said. "We originally aimed for three victories but we started getting a little greedy when we got back home."

Canada was 0-5 during the European leg of the tournament but lost only one game in Canada, 85-53 to the Soviet Union in Winnipeg Thursday.

Ruth Stars Divide Team And Verdicts

Victoria Firefighters Senior Babe Ruth Baseball League All-Stars were split into two squads at the weekend and both produced fair performances.

After losing to Dunsmuir Siskiyou A's of California 3-2 in 13 innings, Saturday at Henderson Park Victoria bounced back to win the second game, 6-1.

The other squad divided decisions in a tournament at Port Angeles. Victoria topped Port Angeles Mets 4-1 but dropped a 2-0 decision to Olympia Tumwater on Saturday. On Sunday, Victoria defeated Port Angeles Aggies 5-3 before being eliminated 6-4 by Mets. Tumwater won the modified round-robin affair with a 5-1 decision over Mets in the final.

Cougars Chart Course, A Coach Will Be Next

A decision on the next coach of Victoria Cougars could be made this week, manager Bob Briscoe said Sunday after returning from Western Canada Hockey League meeting in Calgary.

"There are a few things to do," said Briscoe, "and that will tell us in what direction to move. With that out of the way, we'll decide on the coach, possibly this week."

Briscoe said the WCHL meeting "briefly discussed" recent front-office change involving the Cougars. In effect, league governors approved control of the team passing from Lorne Williams to business partner Ray Haramboure.

Williams was instrumental in the purchase of the team from former owner-coach Pat Ginnell. He intended to operate the team but withdrew because of personal and business problems.

WCHL president Ed Chynoweth described the Calgary session as a "housekeeping meeting."

"This was the first opportunity we've been able to meet since the Memorial Cup series," said Chynoweth "and we had a lot of things to catch up on."

He added the recent transfer franchises—Calgary Centennials to Billings, Mont., and Kamloops Chiefs to Seattle—are "encouraging." Public response in Billings has been "tremendous" and Seattle, said Chynoweth, "is starting to warm up."

Tom Gauthier, who worked with Portland Winter Hawks in various capacities last season, has been named general manager of the Seattle entry and the club expects to name a coach by July 1.

The Chiefs were coached by Harvey Roy the past few years.

PELE FIRES THREE GOALS

The largest crowd ever to see a soccer match in the United States, 62,394, saw Pele score three goals to lead New York Cosmos to a 3-1 victory over Tampa Bay Rowdies Sunday in a North American Soccer League game at East Rutherford, N.J.

The previous American attendance mark was 58,128 set on April 8, 1976, when the Cosmos played Seattle Sounders in the first event held at the Kingdome.

At New Haven, Conn., two first-half goals by Peter Bennett and Al Trost put St. Louis Stars ahead to stay as they defeated Connecticut Bicentennials 3-0. In another game Sunday, Los Angeles defeated Minnesota 3-2. On Saturday, Fort Lauderdale downed Hawaii 3-1, San Jose edged Las Vegas 2-1, Seattle blanked Toronto 3-0 and Dallas blanked Washington 3-0.

Quillevere Quickest In Sprint to Finish

Philip Quillevere beat Michael Peron in a sprint finish Sunday to win the "B" class race over 106 kilometres in the Gary Lund practice bicycle-racing session staged by the Victoria Wheelers at Centennial Park.

Both riders recorded times of three hours, four minutes and 20 seconds. Third-place Patrick Peron clocked in at 3:07.05.

Harvey Sterne won the 73-km. race for "C" class and novice riders in a time of 1:59.15. Tom Wakelin, Denny Baines and Tom Fredrick finished second through fourth.

Mark Barlow of Shawnigan Lake Boys' School finished in a tie with Pierre Peron of Cedar Hill Junior High School for over-all honors after winning the final schoolboys' race of the season over 36 km.

Peron placed second in the event, which was worth double points, and Andy Grzybowski of Colquitz was third, all with times of 1:05.05.

Brill Enjoys Rebounding Thrill

WARSAW — Debbie Brill has returned to the form that has carried her to recognition as one of the outstanding jumpers in the world and Canadian runners came up with highly creditable performances in an international track and field meet here at the weekend.

Debbie won the high jump with a leap of 1.87 metres (six feet, two inches) to beat out American Joan Huntley.

"It was a good start," said the attractive miss from Haney, B.C., obviously pleased at rebounding from a disappointing showing in Berlin recently.

Canadian runners showed up well before a crowd of 20,000.

Paul Craig of Toronto ran the 1,500 metres in 3:40 for a third-place finish. He came from well off the pace to finish behind winner Mike Boit of Kenya (3:37.6) and runnerup Kipsubai Koskei (3:38.6) and the Canadian said he now can start thinking in terms of a 3:38 clocking.

Canadian relay teams also helped chase U.S. and Russian entries to world class performances despite a heavy downpour Saturday.

The U.S. team clocked 39.30 seconds, beating France into second place in the men's event, while the Soviet women were timed in 43:40 seconds, nipping the second-place British by a half second.

A Canadian foursome of Olympians Marg Stride of Vancouver, Patty Loverock and Marjorie Bailey of Vancouver and Joyce Yakubowich of Victoria placed third in the women's race with a time of 44.54.

In a second race over the same distance, the Russian girls again were dominant, with a time of 43.26, but this time the Canadians grabbed second place on a time of 44.45.

A Canadian foursome also picked up a third-place bronze medal in the men's 4x400 relay when three Toronto runners — Ian Seale, Leighton Hope and Bruan Saunders — and Dacre Bowen of Calgary finished behind the U.S. and West Germany.

The winning American time was three minutes, 4.7 seconds, West. Germany was 3:05.1 and Canada 3:09.5.

The Canadian entry in the women's 4x200 — Stride, Loverock, Yakubowich and Bailey — finished fourth with a Canadian record time of 1:35.5.

The Soviet Union won the race with a time of 1:33.2 followed by the U.S. in a national record 1:33.3 and Britain, 1:33.7.

BATES BLANK THREE MORE

Victoria Bate only allowed six hits while recording victories over four up-Island teams in exhibition men's softball games on the road at the weekend.

Bate tripped Legion 49ers 6-1 in Parksville and blanked Nanaimo All-Stars 5-0 Sunday after shutting out Beaufort Hotel 7-0 and Rainbow Lanes 6-0 Saturday in Port Alberni.

The results boost Victoria's shutout record to 16 in team's past 21 games and increased the win-loss margin this season to 28-3.

Andy Konopaki struck out 16 batters and yielded three hits while pitching the triumph over Parksville and Carl Walker led the 12-hit batting attack with a double and two singles in four trips to the plate.

Dave Ruthowsky fashioned two of the victories, holding Nanaimo to two hits while striking out 13 and yielding only two hits to Beaufort Hotel while striking out eight.

Stan Kern, who picked up the win, and reliever Ruthowsky, who came in during the fifth inning, combined to strike out 13 while producing one-hitter against Rainbow Lanes.

TONY CERDA
. . . five-stroke winner

Cerda Captures Ontario Open Title

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Canadians Roger Klatt and George Knudson were left to compare notes on their collapse while Tony Cerda collected the winner's purse, the trophy and some much-needed confidence to help him on the United States golf tour.

Cerda, an Argentine-born former Mexican resident who now lives in Texas, came from three shots behind Sunday to win the Ontario Open golf championship.

His final-round 66, four under par on the 6,243-yard Cutten Club course, gave him a nine-under total of 201, five shots better than Knudson who led the first two rounds.

Cerda picked up his biggest pay cheque ever—$4,000—along with the Peter Jackson Trophy.

Knudson, defending champion from Toronto, had to settle for second money of $3,000 after a final-round 74 and Edmonton's Klatt finished third with a 75—208 for $1,900 after leading the final round briefly before his collapse on the back nine.

Cerda had one word to describe the way he has been playing on the U.S. tour this year: "Terrible."

Cerda said his best U.S. finish this year earned him just $310 and he has managed to make the cut in only three U.S. tournaments.

Knudson and Klatt blamed their troubles on bad putting. Knudson said Cerda didn't have to putt all that well because he always had the ball in good position.

Klatt, 28, starting his third year on the Canadian pro tour, won one other prize—an exemption from qualifying for the Canadian Open next month. The exemption goes to the top Canadian pro but since Knudson was already exempt, Klatt won it.

Cec Ferguson of Victoria led the British Columbia contingent. He fired his second successive 70 Sunday to finish in a tie for ninth place. His 212 total earned Ferguson $625.

John Morgan closed with a 77, nine strokes more than his second-round total, and finished at 216 while southpaw Bob Beauchemin, also of Victoria, finished at 218.

Collision Ends Bid by Cables To Grab One Win

It was a losing weekend in more ways than one for Port Angeles Telecable of the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League.

Telecable lost home-field doubleheaders to Colony Inn, 7-5 and 4-2, and Seaboard Construction, 2-1 and 5-4.

The Washington entry also lost second-baseman Denny Sullivan when the veteran suffered a possible broken shoulder blade after a collision with a clubmate to provide an unsual ending to an extra-inning game Sunday.

Seaboard and Port Angeles were tied 4-4 when the Victoria team came to bat in the top of the ninth. With one out and a runner on second, Sullivan and centre fielder Bill Tiderman collided while chasing a popup by Seaboard's Mike Taafe.

Sullivan made the catch but was forced to withdraw because of the injury. That left Port Angeles with only eight players and the team was forced to default.

Century Inn swept two games from Esquimalt Ocean Express, 5-3 and 5-1, while Castle Properties edged Webb and Trace 2-1 in Heywood Avenue Men's League play.

Kevin Gilbert sparked Century's sweep with two hits in each game, including a two-run homer in the nightcap.

Travelodge and Seaboard Properties both won Sidney Men's League games by 4-3 scores. Pitcher Al Stewart knock in the decisive run in the bottom of the ninth with a double to defeat Sidney Hotel while Dale Ewasiuk's hommer helped Seaboard topple Harvey's Sporting Goods.

Colony Inn highlighted a five-game Senior Women's League program at Hyacinth Park by drubbing Butler Brothers 11-2 and MacDonald's Furniture 9-2.

Lee Wallace went four-for-four at the plate and drove in three runs as Colony belted out 14 hits in the first game. Colony connected for 12 hits in the second game, including a home run and triple by Janice Jones and three singles by Lorna McHattie.

Island Foes Swept Aside

Individual teams from the Victoria Senior Amateur League won five interlocking games with up-Island opponents Sunday but the league All-Stars had to settle for a split against Bellingham Bells of the Vancouver Metro League in an exhibition doubleheader Saturday night.

Gorge Hotel scored in the bottom of the 17th to edge Port Alberni 7-6 in the final two innings of a game that had been postponed earlier because of darkness while Farmer Construction whipped the same club 10-8 and 25-3 in the following doubleheader Sunday at Lambrick Park.

In Campbell River, Greaves Movers topped the host club 8-4 and 6-5.

On Saturday, All-Stars dropped a 3-0 decision to Bells in the opener but bounced back to take a 3-2 nod in the second encouter at Royal Athletic Park.

Garnet Moen and Mark Lawless hit homers to lead Gorge batters.

Kirk Unwin had two hits on three trips to the plate during the 10-8 Farmer win over Alberni to score twice and drive in two runs.

In the 25-3 fiasco, winning-pitcher Bob Mabee and Dan Rogers cracked three and two-run homers, respectively. Ron Holmes finished the game, which was called after five innings, with a five-for-five record at bat and Mabee was four-for-four.

Cowichan Scores A Double Victory

Cowichan, which was previously winless, moved into a share of fifth place with Oak Bay by recording two Victoria and District Cricket Association victories at the weekend.

Cowichan tripped Nanaimo by eight wickets Sunday at Shawnigan Lake after beating still-winless Saanich by 30 runs Saturday at Mt. Douglas High School.

In other Saturday matches, Albion took a firm grip on second place by trampling Oak Bay by 104 runs at Windsor Park while Incogs and Castaways played to a draw at Beacon Hill Park.

On Sunday, Alcos, Castaways and Incogs collected victories in the 40-overs competition. Alcos trounced Comos by 216 runs at Windsor Park, Castaways downed Saanich by 85 runs at Mt. Douglas and Incogs tripped Albion 39 runs at Beacon Hill.

Tim Lord came up with a remarkable two-way effort to spark the Cowichan win over Nanaimo. Lord scored a "century" by batting 127, not out, as Cowichan reached 186 for two wickets after Nanaimo had declared at 183 for seven.

Lord also led Cowichan bowlers by taking three wickets for 32 runs and Frank Dickson was the top Nanaimo batsman with 54 runs.

Alan Carter scored 54 as Albion ran up 172 against some strong bowling led by Ken Aziz, who toppled five for 27. Then Oak Bay was dismissed for 68 with John Buchanan taking five for 19 and Hughes three for 19.

Jeremy Goodwin and Eric Kjekstad contributed 69 runs as Incogs declared at 146. Despite Bevan Grant taking seven for 12 in 18 overs, Castaways were able to ease through with 76 when only nine wickets were down when time ran out.

In the 40-overs matches, Alcos reached 249 and then held Comox to 33; Castaways chalked up 137 and dismissed Saanich for 52, while Incogs reached 175 for four but Albion could only manage 136 for eight.

Triples Win

Jack McMillan's Burnside entry has captured the Greenslade Trophy, a men's triples competition, in the annual tournament held at Oak Bay Lawn Bowling Club.

McMillan, Syd Smethurst and Bert Edmonds defeated clubmates George Sage, George Dean and Andy Davies 22-16 in the final.

Oak Bay's Don Corker skipped his entry to victory over a Canadian Pacific trio skipped by Jim Grundy to win the annual Adshead Trophy competition for bowlers over 80 years of age.

Judy Wins 23rd

NOBLESVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Judy Rankin overcame a double bogey on her first hole Sunday to win the 23rd Ladies' Professional Golf Association championship tournament of her 15-year career with a four-under-par 212 at the 6,044-yard Harbor Trees Golf Club here.

The 32-year-old Texan pulled away from the opposition on the final nine holes to win by two strokes over Jane Blalock with a 71 on her final round. She shot a one-over par on her first nine and pulled into the lead with a birdie on the 12th hole.

The first place prize of $7,500 in the $50,000 tourney boosted her 1977 earnings past the $66,000 mark.

Blalock sank a 10-foot birdie putt on her final hole to earn second-place money of $5,040.

South African Sally Little was third at one-under-par 215.

Hometown favorite Sandra Spuzich tied for fourth with Kathy Farrer at 215.

AUTOMOBILE RACING ROUNDUP

Pit Stop Beats Mario

Times News Services

Jacques Laffite of France drove a steady race in his Ligier-Matra to win the Swedish Grand Prix Sunday at Anderstorp after Mario Andretti of the United States, who had held the lead for most of the race, was forced into the pits with only three laps to go.

Jochen Mass of West Germany moved his McLaren into second place in a dramatic finish with Carlos Reuteman of Argentina. Reutemann finished third in a Ferrari.

The victory was the first in Grand Prix racing for the 33-year-old Laffite and the first for the Matra engine in Formula 1 racing.

Patrick Depailler, runner-up here last year, finished fourth in his 6-wheel Tyrrell. Britain;s John Watson finished fifth in his Brabham.

Andretti held the lead from the second lap until he was forced into the pits. The pit stop lasted for 28 seconds and was enough for Laffite to take the lead and cruise home for victory.

Andretti, of Nazareth, Pa., had the same bad luck last year when he was in the lead for most of the race but had to retire because of engine trouble. This time he finished sixth.

James Hunt, Britain's reigning world champion wound up seventh after running second more than 10 laps midway in the race.

South African Jody Scheckter retired on the 30th lap after hitting Watson's rear but still leads the world championship standings.

Scheckter, a two-time winner here for Tyrrell but now racing a Wolf-Ford for Montreal industrialist Walter Wolf, has 32 points, one point ahead of Austrian Niki Lauda.

Elsewhere, Cale Yarborough proved once again the horsepower superiority of his Chevrolet as he broke away for a 10-second victory over Richard Petty in Sunday's 400-mile race for Grand National stock cars at Michigan International Speedway.

Yarborough trailed Dave Marcis by almost a full lap at one time and was being black-flagged for spewing oil. But Richard Childress crunched the first turn wall, bringing out a cautien flag that allowed Yarborough to make up the disadvantage and get the oil leak fixed.

Marcis was in second place with five laps to go, but a tire blew, sending him into a lazy spin through the fourth turn infield. By the time he got going again and got the tire changed, he had dropped to fourth. Benny Parsons finished third.

Yarborough, who averaged 135.03 m.p.h. for his seventh victory this season, picked up $16,275. Combined with his winnings Saturday in a special challenge race against Indy-car driver Gordon Johncock he pushed his weekend earnings to almost $30,000.

Yarborough earned $13,500 for less than 10 minutes of work in Saturday's 10-lap, 20-mile challenge duel with Johncock.

Robertson Leads

Al Robertson of Glen Meadows fired a par-matching 70 at Uplands on Saturday to take a one-stroke lead into the third and final round of the Vancouver Island assistant-professionals' golf championships.

Robertson, who opened with a 76 at Colwood last Thursday, has a 146 total, one stroke ahead of Nanaimo's Gary Scramstead, 73-74—147.

Mike Parker of Victoria, 74-74—148, and Bruce Rands of Uplands, 71-77—148, share third spot. Doug Mahovlic of Victoria, 74-77—151, is fifth.

The 54-hole test winds up Wednesday at Victoria Golf Club.

Meadows Pair Collects Bowl

Glen Meadows members fared better than Oak Bay's wind players in the Centennial Foursomes golf tournament Sunday.

Grant Macauley and Doug Kibble of the North Saanich club combined for a gross 87 at Victoria Golf Club. Half of their combined handicap pro at Victoria golf Club. Half of their combined handicap produced a net 66 and a one-stroke victory over clubmates Bill Taylor and Bill Sheppard in the 19th annual hunt for the Rose Bowl.

Jack Fidlar and Carl Schwantje of the host club finished third with a net 67½ as a stiff, all-day breeze caused many of the problems for a record entry of 118 teams.

While there was no gross prizes, the honors went to Gorge Vale's Dave Donaldson and Don Marsden, who fired a two-over-par 72. Their net 69 was good for a share of fifth place.

ROOKIE RESCUES ESKS

EDMONTON (CP) — Rookie running back Larry Washington broke away from two tacklers and scored a 43-yard touchdown with 16 seconds remaining Saturday night as Edmonton Eskimos rallied for a 27-24 victory over Ottawa Rough Riders in a Canadian Football League exhibition game.

Washington took the pass from veteran Tom Wilkinson, who directed the Eskimos' 13-point last-quarter spurt, before 14,166 fans.

Steve Ferrughelli scored on a four-yard run set up by Wilkinson's passing earlier in the fourth quarter.

John Konihowski took a four-yard scoring pass from Bruce Lemmerman in the first quarter for the other Edmonton touchdown.

Dave Cutler completed scoring with field goals of 35 and 36 yards, two converts and a 29-yard single.

Rookie fullback Mike Murphy paced Ottawa with one touchdown and a masterful display of running after receiving short passes from quarterbacks Tom Clements and Condredge Holloway. Murphy's total of 140 yards on six receptions helped set up a five-yard touchdown run by Holloway and a one-yard burst by Al Pittman.

Gerry Organ converted all three and had a 13-yard field goal.

Manpower Woes Hurt Irish Cause

Manpower problems and difficulty with Coquitlam Adanacs combined to knock Victoria Shamrocks out of sole possession of second place in the Western Lacrosse Association Saturday night.

Playing without four regulars, the Shamrocks dropped a 15-11 decision in Coquitlam.

The result, combined with New Westminster's 17-14 triumph over Nanaimo Timbermen, enabled the Salmonbellies to pull into a second-place tie with Victoria.

Shamrocks, playing without Ivan Thompson, Mike Beaulac, Dennis Somner and goaltender Larry Smeltzer, kept on even terms with the Adanacs for two periods.

The score was tied 6-6 after the first and 9-9 after the second period. Adanacs struck for four straight goals early in the third period, including three in the first 5¼ minutes of play, to take charge.

Randy Bryan and Mike Holden supplied the offensive spark for the fourth-place Adanacs. Bryan stored three of the Adanacs' six goals in the final period while Holden was the overall leader with an eight-point performance, including three goals.

Ray Durante counted four goals while Harry Powless scored twice and set up four.

Ron MacNeil led the Irish with three goals and two assists. Pete Rushton also added two while Charn Dhillon, Norm Baker, Larry Bell, Dan Green, Bill Marechek and Dave Thompson each counted one goal for Victoria. Dhillon also picked up four assists.

Veteran Wayne Goss sparked Salmonbellies with a strong, nine-point performance at Nanaimo. He scored five goals and drew four assists to help send Timbermen down to their 13th loss in 14 games.

Rookie Kevin Alexander sparkled for the Nanaimo squad with seven goals and one assist.

Randy Noble, with two, Rick Baker, Jim Guerin, Jim Lynch, Ian Kennedy and Roy Sinden were Nanaimo's other marksmen.

Bob Tasker of New Westminster was taken out of play in the first period when he suffered a cut over an eye. Alexander was penalized for high sticking on the play but Tasker came back in the third period after taking 10 stitches to close the wound.

Runners Surprise Macs

Richmond Roadrunners cashed in on a depleted Victoria lineup to upset the McDonalds 14-13 in a Western Canada Major Junior Lacrosse League game Saturday.

It was only the second victory in 14 games for last-place Richmond.

The Macs started without five regulars and lost two more during the game. The under-staffed Victoria squad couldn't maintain a lead they built up in the first two periods of the game at Richmond.

Victoria led 6-5 after the opening session and 11-9 after the second period before being outscored 5-2 in the finale.

Tim Kelly scored three goals while Dan Stewart and Dave Cochrane each added a pair to spark the Runners' attack.

Tej Labh scored four for Victoria while Ron Sage and Scott Browning each added two. Steve Buckley, Lorry Gloeckner, Mark Roberts, Terry Jay and Jamie Robertson each scored one.

Roberts was one of four junior "B" players picked up by the Macs. Coach Muzz Bryant also recruited Wayne Reeves, Don Metcalf and Dwayne Ferguson in an effort to offset the absence of Doug Angrove, Kevin Kennedy, Randy Bryant, Mike Duch and captain Jim Boyd.

McDonalds suffered added losses during the game. Gloeckner suffered an ankle injury in the early going and was forced to retire while Bob Derraugh was ejected with a game misconduct.

Metcalf and Rick Bains combined to make 46 stops in the Victoria goal while Mark Eckingren and Dave Lemire turned aside 32 for Richmond.

Undefeated Burnaby Cablevision exploded for 21 goals in the third period to trounce Coquitlam 38-11 Sunday. Burnaby outshot the J-Hawks 100-45 in recording their 14th consecutive victory.

Dan Perreault led Burnaby with six goals while John Krgovich had five and Dan Wilson and Paul Delmonte each counted four.

Goalie Retires

PRAGUE (AP) — Ivo Viktor, No. 1 goaltender for the Czechoslovakian national soccer team, has decided to retire. Sidelined by a back injury earlier this season, he suffered a relapse after resuming training with his team, league-champion Dukla Prague.

Hornets, Crusaders Reach Bantam Final

The favored Saanich Hornets and Oak Bay Crusaders powered their way into the Vancouver Island Junior Bantam Football League final Sunday.

Sparked by the 30-point performance of Brian Kennish, Hornets crushed Juan de Fuca Tigers 54-14 at Cedar Hill Park while the Crusaders blanked a stubborn Patriots squad 20-0 in Duncan.

The final will be played next Sunday at Cedar Hill Park, starting at 2 p.m.

Kennish scored four touchdowns and added three two-point converts for Saanich. Brad Witt struck for three majors while Chris Spargo added one.

Steve Battye and Mike Klashinsky scored Juan de Fuca's majors with Jim Hala adding a two-point convert.

At Duncan, Brad Stevenson accounted for two Oak Bay touchdowns and added a two-point convert. Phil Leseur rambled over for the other major.

Crusaders led 8-0 at the half but couldn't clinch the game until the final quarter.

Mainland Wins

VANCOUVER — Vancouver has won the latest round in the annual soccer oldtimers rivalry with Victoria.

John Dot and Mike Candey each scored two goals Saturday to spark Vancouver to a 6-1 victory and a clear-cut decision in the home-and-home series. Teams battled to a 2-2 draw in the series opener at Victoria's Centennial Stadium the previous weekend.

Vancouver, which led 2-0 at the half Saturday, also got goals from Jim Bryant and Ed Ruttan.

Former Welsh international Brian Hughes, now coaching University of Victoria, was the lone Victoria marksman.

Fastest Clocking

KLAGENFURT, Austria (AP) — Karoline Kaefer, of Austria competing in a national meet, won the women's 400 metres in a time of 50.62 seconds Saturday, best clocking by a woman at that distance this year.

CAUDWELL PADS LEAD WITH NANAIMO WIN

Times News Services

Jim Caudwell was the big winner as Victoria drivers finished 1-2-3 in the main event of a super-stock car racing program at Nanaimo's Grandview Bowl on Saturday.

Caudwell, driving a 1968 Fairlane, beat out Bob Collins in the 35-lap feature. Jerry Ferrie finished third while Dave Johnson took fourth place.

The victory helped Caudwell extend his point lead in the Carling O'Keefe Island championship series.

Gary Remister won the "A" trophy dash, while Al Vanderbyl took the "B" dash and Ray Vatcher captured the fast heat. Ernie Schoor and Al Miller were other heat winners.

Americans Keep Cup

EASTBOURNE, England (AP) — Chris Evert and Billie Jean King scored singles victories Saturday to give the United States a 2-1 victory over Australia and retention of the women's Federation Cup lawn tennis championship.

Evert, playing below form, won the clincher in the best-of-five series by beating Kerry Reid 7-5, 6-3 in the second singles match to give the Americans the $40,000 first prize.

Earlier, King downed Dianne Fromholtz 6-7, 2-6, 6-2. In the meaningless doubles, Reid and Wendy Turnbull defeated Evert and Rosemary Casals 6-3, 6-3.

It was sixth victory in 10 Federation Cup appearances for the United States.

QUEBEC (CP(— Winger Simon Nolet, 35, says he is retiring as a player with Denver Rockies of the NHL.

Cauthen Ready for Work

Steve Cauthen is heading back to New York and to the sport he captivated before an injury sidelined him for a month.

The 17-year-old Cauthen was the United States' leading thoroughbred jockey with 275 victories before being battered and cut in a May 23 spill at Belmont Park. In that mishap, Cauthen suffered a broken wrist and cuts over his right eye and on his right hand.

But the hurts are behind him and Cauthen, fresh from a Florida vacation, is ready to get back to work.

"I feel good," said Cauthen at his home in Walton Ky. "I feel rested and strong.

Cauthen said he plans to return to New York either today or Tuesday and will gallop horses for a while before returning to competition.

At Belmont, Saturday, jockey Jean Cruguet scored his fourth stakes win in eight days as he piloted Hunza Dancer to victory in the $114,300 Bowling Green Handicap.

Hunza Dancer, who had been kicked by another horse while being jogged on Friday morning, spent the night with his right leg in ice.

In the richest race on North American tracks Sunday, Silver Series opened up a two-length lead on the far turn and held off favored Cormorant to win the $150,000 Ohio Derby at Cleveland's Thistledown track.

The silver-and-black three-year-old covered the mile and one-eighth on a fast track in 1:49.2 to earn $90,000 and boost his winnings after nine races to $236,000.

At Boston, Swinging Hal, a four-year-old gelding, breezed to a four-length triumph over El Pitirre in the $72,350 second division of the Massachusetts Handicap at Suffolk Downs.

Blue Times charged from eighth place to win by a neck over Pension Plan in the $71,550 first division.

Now Pending scored a surprise victory at Hollywood Park in Inglewood, Calif., leading most of the way and getting home with a half-length margin over Swingtime in the $54,050 Wilshire Handicap.

Ridden by Rudy Campas and packing 114 pounds, New Pending covered the mile and one-eighth on turf in 1:48 4-5 and paid $46.20, $17.80 and $7.60.

Canadian Sandy Hawley rode three winners Sunday to take a 79-77 lead over Laffit Pincay in victories at the current Hollywood Park meeting.

On Saturday Crystal Water won the Hollywood Gold Cup. Pincay was the jockey.

At Vancouver Saturday, Pampas Host, out of the money in five earlier starts this season, bounced up at 7-to-1 odds and won the $12,500-added Sun handicap for the senior stakes runners at Exhibition Park.

Victory in the mile and one-sixteenth event was worth $8,732 to owners of the five-year-old gelding.

Selects Extend Win Skein

DEBBIE SCOTT
. . . wins 1,500 metres

Victoria Selects boosted their unbeaten streak to three straight meets Saturday by topping a Western Canada Track League competition at Centennial Stadium.

Selects, competing in excellent weather before a home-town audience of about 500 dominated the men's field and women's track events to accumulate 384 points. Vancouver Olympics, a non-league club, finished second with 328 and Fraser Valley Flyers finished last at 36.

Flyers, who make up the league with Victoria and Calgary, sent over only a handful of athletes.

Olympics, who are reporting planning on joining the league next year, provided the only real competition.

Murray Keating's hammer throw was the highlight as Victoria won six of the eight men's field events. He hurled the hammer 66.98 metres, beating his own league record of 65.50 and coming within 1.32 metres of his personal best distance.

Victoria runners Cheryl Matthews, Debbie Scott and Joanne Rodgers stood out in track events.

Miss Matthews posted a personal best of 9:50.5 while winning the 3,000 metres, Miss Scott set a record of 4:30.0 while winning the 1,500 metres and Miss Rodgers, who competes for Victoria but lives in Courtenay, won the 100 metres in a league record 12.2 seconds.

Crystal Water Takes Handicap

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Hard-hitting Crystal Water held off a strong challenge in the stretch Saturday and won the $300,000 Hollywood Gold Cup Handicap at Hollywood Park.

Winning his fourth consecutive major race, the four-year-old Crystal Water got under the wire a neck in front of Cascapedia, the lone filly in the rich event. A nose back in a thundering three-horse finish was Caucasus.

Carrying high weight of 129 pounds, the California-bred Crystal Water was timed in 2:00.0 in the one and one-quarter mile feature.

Farrah a Convicted Shoplifter

LOS ANGELES — Farrah Fawcett-Majors was acting not as a shoplifter but as a "self-help consumer advocate" when she took items of clothing from two shops several years ago, according to her lawyer.

Responding to a report in the New York Post that Miss Fawcett-Majors was twice arrested and found guilty of shoplifting, lawyer Elliot Abelson insisted that his client "is not a thief and not a Kleptomaniac."

He said she was upset at having purchased what she later found to be inferior merchandise from the shops and merely exchanged them for articles of similar value when the shopkeepers refused to do so.

"She did not take anything that did not belong to her," Abelson said. "She never meant to misappropriate any items, and I consider her one of the first self-help consumer advocates."

Miss Fawcett-Majors, 30, was arrested in August, 1970, on petty theft charges and found guilty of taking two dresses from Judy's Boutique in Los Angeles, Abelson said. She was fined $125.

In November, 1970, she was again arrested on petty theft charges and found guilty of taking two coats from a San Fernando Valley shop, he said. She was placed on 18 months probation and fined $265, but the fine was suspended on condition that she undergo psychiatric treatment.

Miss Fawcett-Majors visited a psychiatrist for six months, Abelson said, but he would not disclose the name of the Los Angeles doctor.

"I think it's unfortunate that something as insignificant as this is being brought up now," the lawyer said. "There have been no incidences whatsoever since then, and she has no prior record."

Miss Fawcett-Majors, wife of television's Six Million Dollar Man, Lee Majors, skyrocketed to stardom in the private eye series Charlie's Angels.

She and Majors have said they will not return to their TV shows in the fall because they want to pursue careers in films.

ANITA GETS THE SQUEEZE

BOSTON — Orange juice commercials may not be for Anita Bryant any more. Condoctor Arthur Fiedler and Olympic skating star Dorothy Hamill may soon become the new symbols of the sunshine drink.

Fiedler said Sunday night he has filmed some commercials for Florida orange juice.

The Florida Citrus Commission, worried that Miss Bryant's anti-gay campaign has hurt her effectiveness as the orange juice queen, is conducting a marketing survey to find out if she should be asked to leave her $100,000-a-year job.

In the meantime, the commission has made the backup commercials.

Hughes' Heirs Decide Divvy

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Relatives of the late Howard Hughes have reached an out-of-court settlement to divide his estate estimated to be worth up to $2.5 billion, according to the Montgomery Advertiser-Journal.

If the settlement stands, Hughes' aunt, Mrs. Annette Gano Lummin of Houston, will get the biggest share — 23.83 per cent, the paper claims in a copyrighted story.

The newspaper quoted unidentified lawyers for family members as saying the agreement was reached "to prevent years of litigation."

Hughes, one of the richest men in the world when he died, had assets estimated at between $168.8 million and $2.5 billion.

In addition to Mrs. Lummis, the paper said, three granddaughters of Rubert Hughes, Howard Hughes' uncle, each would get 6.33 per cent of the estate under terms of the settlement.

Avis Hughes McIntyre of Montgomery, a stepcousin of Howard Hughes, and her brother, Rush Hughes, reportedly were awarded a total of 9.5 er cent each.

The rest of the estate will be divided among 16 other heirs.

Mrs. Lummis' son William was named chairman of the board of Summa Corp., Hughes' personal company, after Hughes died.

In any event, the settlement cannot go into effect until there is settlement in two lawsuits involving other alleged wills.

A hearing is set for Aug. 17 in Las Vegas on a petition by Mrs. Lummis to throw out the so-called "Mormon Will," which benefits the Mormon Church, the Boy Scouts of America, several orphanages and a gas station attendant named Melvin Dummar.

Mrs. Lummis' petition calls the will a forgery.

Another lawsuit has been filed in Las Vegas on behalf of the Howard Hughes Medical Institute, claiming that in 1938 Hughes wrote a will — which since has vanished — leaving his entire estate to the institute, a charitable organization.

ALI WEDS MODEL

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Amid security reminiscent of a presidential visit, heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali wed model Veronica Porche in a private civil ceremony Sunday.

With Superior Court Judge Billy Mills presiding, Ali married Miss Porche in a brief ceremony before some 200 friends and relatives.

Ali would not comment to the press, saying only, "This is a very sacred moment for me."

A heavyweight champ from another era, Joe Louis, was among the guests.

Banker Was A Gambler

BASLE — A card-playing Swiss banker who gambled away more than $1.7 million in borrowed money has been sentenced to four years in prison.

Ernst Burger, 47, was sentenced Friday for falsifying documents, abuse of confidence and mismanagement.

During the four-day trial, the prosecution said Burger had been appointed on the orders of the Swiss banking commission because of controversy over the business policies of the late Israeli industrialist William Robinson at the small banik.

Burger then gambled away the $1.7 million in card games, continued to run the affairs of the bank while $850,000 more in bank money was spent for cigarette smuggling.

This Year, Europe Is Awash

LONDON (AP) — This time last year a severe drought was taking its toll in Western Europe. Rivers and reservoirs were shrinking. Relentless sunshine was turning fields and pastures brown.

This summer it's raining. The Thames, the Rhine, the Rhone and the Po are brimming again. Reservoirs, dangerously low when rains last October ended the drought, are full.

Last June, Britons, Belgians, French, Germans and Italians were sweltering. This year they are huddled in raincoats under umbrellas.

"It's been cloudy, cool and wet and looks likely to stay that way," says the London weather centre.

"Lots of rain in sight" is the word from the meteorological office in Brussels, Belgium.

Farmers in northern Italy are complaining that crops, especially fruit, are suffering from too much rain. In parts of West Germany almost twice the average rainfall has fallen this month.

Floods have hit many parts of France. Wine growers in the usually sunny south are asking for government subsidies because of rain and frost damage to their vineyards.

In Spain, parts of which also were hit by the drought last year, the temperature is below normal.

Dutch weather experts report a near normal summer so far.

The 1976 heat wave started in early May. The Royal Dutch Meteorological Institute recorded the first tropical day on May 9, when the temperature rose to 30 degrees Celsius.

Then came day after sunny day of rainless skies with temperatures in the 30s, bringing elation at first, and then gloom.

Food prices climbed as crops withered in the fields. Water rationing went into effect in Britain and elsewhere.

Tens of thousands of cattle were slaughtered for lack of fodder.

Denmark reported its grain harvest was 15 per cent below normal. Britain's yield was 5.7 per cent below the average for the previous three years.

The West German government made a $26 million emergency payout to farmers whose crops were hit by the drought.

Basques Demand Break

MADRID (Reuter) — The Basques, long-time opponents of the Spanish government, have issued the first open challenge to Premier Adolfo Suarez since his victory in last week's general elections.

Newly-elected representatives from the four Basque provinces announced Sunday that they will make the granting of home rule for their region a top priority for Spain's new parliament.

They sent a communique to King Juan Carlos and Suarez calling for a statute of autonomy for the Basque country, the official recognition of the Basque language, the release of all political prisoners and the return home of exiles.

At meetings in Guernica, the traditional home of Basque nationalism, and Azcain on the French side of the border, about 30 deputies to the lower house of parliament and newlyelected senators formed a pressure group to work for these demands.

A leading Basque Socialist, Jose Maria Benegas, told more than 1,000 people at the Guernica meeting: "We are going to fight to build the Basque nation within a federal Spanish state."

The Basque politicians agreed on their hardline stance as Suarez considered the makeup of his second government.

His cabinet has tendered its resignation and he is expected to announce his new team this week, probably from within the ranks of his centrist coalition, the Democratic Centre Union (UCD).

The UCD won the most seats in the elections. But Suarez will not have a majority in the lower house and may need the tacit support of moderate Basque deputies to push through legislation in the face of the left-wing opposition.

Sunday's statement by the Basque members of parliament was a clear warning that any co-operation from them will have to be bought at the price of immediate home rule for the region.

LOST-AND-FOUND DEPT.

Police Evidence Is Mounting That People Are Still Honest

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Diogenes never found an honest man. But Victoria police Sgt. Doug Wilson says he has.

In fact, Wilson says he's found quite a few.

Wilson heads the police department's lost-and-found section. Rarely does a day pass that someone doesn't bring in something found abandoned or lost on city streets or parks.

And that's proof enough for him to conclude there are, at least, some honest people around.

What impresses Wilson most is the number of times cash is turned in. Since March, the total is well over $250.

Most are small amounts, like a 12-year-old boy who found a $1 bill on the street or an elderly woman who discovered 70 cents in an envelope left on a bench in Bastion Square.

Some of the amounts are larger. One recent find was a bundle of bills totalling $170. It still hasn't been claimed.

Wilson says he keeps the cash 90 days and if it isn't claimed by then, the money goes to the finder — if the finder wants it.

"It's surprising how many tell us they don't want the money and ask us to donate it to their favorite charity," he says.

The lost-and-found section is busiest during the summer months. In May, 83 items were turned in; only 33 were claimed.

Wilson's biggest headache is finding space to store the articles. The back room of his office on the fourth floor of the Fisgard Street station looks like a flourishing used-goods business.

"You'll find just about anything you can name here," he says.

On the shelves are stacks of clothing, handbags, wallets, a half dozen fire extinguishers (all empty), five cameras, ice skates, skis, several pairs of eyeglasses, a hairdryer, a sleeping bag, three guitars (one electric), a tapestry, four motorcycle helmets, five toolboxes, a radio tape deck — even, if you can imagine, a pair of crutches and a set of false teeth.

There is a televison set found in the 800-block Yates last September, a lamp shade left on the sidewalk at Pandora and Johnson in March, and a large bag containing a tent, camping materials and machete someone found in Beacon Hill Park last June.

Wilson opens a drawer of a cabinet and takes out a fistful of keys. He opens another drawer to show about 20 watches and a third to reveal a collection of rings, necklaces and bracelets.

Efforts are made to track down the owners, but it's no easy task.

"Most of the purses and handbags have no ID in them and, in the few that do, there are often as many as six different sets of ID. We send off letters but seldom get answers," said Wilson.

Police are required under the Municipal Act to keep the found property for three months. After that they can dispose of the articles as they see fit.

Wilson says the eyeglasses go to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. The clothing normally ends up at Goodwill or the Salvation Army. The rest goes to public auction held sporadically as the need dictates.

Wilson feels the public should be made more aware of the lost-and-found service.

"If someone loses something this should be the first place to check," he says.

He cites a recent example of a woman who lost an expensive watch. She ran ads in the local papers for a week. Wilson noticed the ad and gave her a call.

Sure enough, he had her watch.

"She couldn't believe it," he says. "She came up and told me she didn't know we did this sort of thing. She was one happy customer."

Boilermakers Urging Steel Plant to Stay

The Boilermakers Union wants Quadra Steel Ltd. to reconsider its decision to close its plant in Victoria.

Neil Hindle, business agent for Local 191 of the union, said Saturday he intends to meet with company president Jack Harrison in Vancouver.

"We'll be asking him to take a second look at the decision," Hindle said.

The company announced last week it would close because other manufacturing companies are leaving the city and the market for steel products is dwindling as a consequence.

The closure is to take effect sometime within the next three months and will involve the loss of 15 jobs.

Hindle disputed the company's reason for shutting down.

"To say it's because industries are leaving Victoria is just not valid, not true," he said. "There is no justification in my mind for the company taking such action."

Hindle said the company's claim that Victoria steel needs could be serviced from its Nanaimo office is not good enough.

"If a large corporation has to lower its corporate flag in Victoria, then I'd say something must be wrong with management."

Hindle said there is a danger corporations may get the attitude Victoria isn't a good place to carry out business.

"It's group psychology. One firm sees another pack up and leave and begins to wonder if it should get in the same boat. Before you know it, you have a stampede."

Hindle said the problems in the local economy are no more evident than in the shipbuilding and ship repair industry which provides the bulk of the jobs for members of his union.

He described the situation as "just terrible" and noted 36 per cent of the 450 union members are currently unemployed.

"It's bad enough when we have to send men out of the province to try to find them work in Alberta or Saskatchewan, but even worse when we see men who can't find a job, have used up their unemployment insurance and are forced to go on welfare."

Hindle said the solution to Victoria's economic woes lie not so much in attracting new industry as in helping industry already established here.

"The time has come for the corporate community to release its financial energies for shipbuilding and repair which has always been one of our most important industries.

"We're all going to have to make an effort to free enterprise," he said.

Hindle, who was re-elected business agent of the local in elections last Tuesday, said he intends to initiate discussions with industry leaders and politicians at both the federal and provincial levels and will press for action.

"Unemployment should be a non-partisan matter but it's a matter that has to be fought vigorously."

BABY'S STROLLER became a receptacle for book bargains Saturday as Dixie Sackett and seven-month-old daughter Brooke emerged from the second annual sale of surplus books held by Greater Victoria Public Library at First United Church hall. Most of the 12,000 books offered were picked up by eager buyers, particularly late in the day as books went for 50 cents an armful. Proceeds amounted to about $3,400, a library spokesman said today.

Accused No-Show

A bench warrant was issued today for the arrest of Stephen Robert Williams, 30, who failed to appear for his Assize trial on a charge of rape.

Crown counsel Brian Smith said an earlier warrant was issued four days ago when the prosecution was told for the first time that Williams wasn't reporting to a native court worker under terms of his bail.

Court worker Wayne Paul said Williams had been reporting for a time but not since early April and he agreed he didn't tell anybody about this or enlist the support of police.

He said the last address he had for Williams was 344 Cook.

Questioned by Mr. Justice Samuel Toy, Paul said no one had told him what should happen if a person on bail fails to report as required by court order.

Toy said a court reporter, a court registrar, at least three deputy sheriffs, defence and crown counsel, judge and a panel of 53 jurors "were all brought together to try Williams and he's not here."

He asked Smith to inform the attorney-general that people designated to act in "some form of surveillance" over people granted bail are apparently doing this without knowledge or guidance as to their responsibilities.

Toy said in addition to the inconvenience there was perhaps the cost of $1,000 for Williams' failure to appear. He ordered the case put over to the next Assizes.

Outside School Workers Turn Down GVLRA Pact

Greater Victoria school board outside workers have rejected a tentative agreement reached last week with the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Asssociation.

Union spokesman Bob Cunningham said today the 300 members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 382, turned down the package Sunday night because it doesn't contain a clause prohibiting the contracting out of work.

The count of the secret ballot was not released.

Cunningham said negotiators made it clear to the members that there will be no strike over the issue and negotiations will continue with the GVLRA.

Meanwhile, members of the Esquimalt CUPE local have voted to accept the agreement and four other locals have yet to conduct ratification ballots.

Cunningham, who is the representative for Local 382 as well as spokesman for CUPE's joint bargaining committee, said the committee will decide whether the school board employees will be allowed to opt out of the joint group and bargain alone with the GVLRA.

The CUPE locals banded together under the understanding that any settlement would have to be unanimous.

GVLRA negotiator Carl Anshelm said today he expects the employers will sign with the five other locals, if they accept, and then continue bargaining with the school board workers.

However, he held out litle hope that the association will budge on the contracting-out clause.

Anshelm said he sees no evidence for 'the employees' fears that they are going to be sub-contracted out of existence.

ROAD CHECK NABS THREE

Three motorists were given roadside suspensions by Oak Bay police during a 1½-hour roadblock early Saturday.

Several of the 125 drivers stopped at Fort and Foul Bay between 1:30 and 3 a.m. had been drinking, but none were sufficiently impaired to be charged, police said.

About 25 tickets for minor infractions or mechanical checkups were issued.

Brake Cutter 'Mad at World'

Whoever cut the brake lines on four moving vans in Victoria West at the weekend must have been "mad at the world," owner William DiCastri said today.

He has offered a $500 reward for information resulting in an arrest for the vandalism that caused one of the vehicles to hit a bus on Craigflower at Raynor Saturday morning.

The bus was full of people but no one was hurt.

"It must have been somebody not just mad at me; they're mad at the world," said DiCastri, proprietor of Save-Way Movers.

Driver Rick Vosburgh had just left the moving company property and was driving slowly toward the intersection and attempting to stop as the bus approached. His brakes failed and he pulled the handbrake while attempting to turn away from the bus, which he hit broadside just behind the exit door.

Examination showed the brake lines on that truck and three others parked on the company lot had been pried away from their connections with something like a crowbar, DiCastri said.

Electrical wiring for the lights also had been ripped out.

DiCastri discounted a suggestion the damage might have been done by a business competitor. His competition is more national than local, he said, and besides, "I think an adult man would have more brains than that."

Anyone wanting to damage the business could have stopped the trucks by some other means than wrecking the brakes and endangering the public, DiCastri said.

We Left Our Worries Down the Highway

FOR WIN AND ME, Wednesday is an anniversary of sorts. Five years ago on June 22, we left Victoria with a cranky little cat, a commission to write for you once a week, and a plan based less on logic than on hope.

We loved Victoria. Our son and most of our friends were there. But the ordered suburban life had palled on us. We were ready for a new adventure.

So we drove north to this house between sea and highway at the edge of the Campbell River country, and to a different way of life.

Five years ago? If it weren't for my desk calendar with its reminders of deadlines to meet and appointments to keep, I'd find that hard to believe. The time seems to have passed all in a rush since that day of an earlier June when we ducked under a waterfall from an overflowing roof-gutter to take possession.

We should have been worried. Apart from this once-a-week screed and an iron ration from the sale of our Victoria house which we were committed not to touch, we had no visible means of support. Curiously, though, we had left our worries somewhere down the road.

Changes have been made. The gutters only overflow now when I forget to clean the spruce needles and cones from them.

We have a new roof, a fence between us and the highway with its almost-constant traffic growl which no longer disturbs us, and a house that has become very much our home.

Not necessarily our last home. Win and I aren't swallow-the-anchor people. We have learned to live by and for the day to an extent that both surprises and amuses us. A time may come when another change is indicated; until then our concern is with a present which we find very much to our taste.

There is a time for work, and a time for drifting. That first summer gave us what I now realize we badly needed — a long ~~and carefree~~ holiday. We soaked in a lot of sunshine. We went fishing and berry-picking and beach-rambling. When the inevitable summer guests arrived, we let them set their own pace.

They asked questions. "Don't you get lonely for the city?" or "What do you find to do with yourselves?"

While we have the luck to be together, Win and I will never be lonely. And in that first therapeutic summer, the necessity of finding things to do didn't intrude itself.

When fall brought brisker days, I returned to my old trade of freelance writing after a lapse of 10 columnizing years. The prospects weren't encouraging. I was out of touch with the markets. Most of the magazines I'd once written for were gone, killed off by changing times.

And a run-of-the-mill writer out of circulation for as little as a year becomes aware of a dismaying fact.

He is once more an unknown, a beginner who must start from scratch. Also, he must scratch like the very devil.

We entered on a lean year of slim pickings. I added to my collection of editors' rejections slips. But with a minor sale here and another there — and rather more fish, clams and oysters in our diet than we might have preferred — we weathered through.

One day, a cheque for a piece we'd believed lost without trace turned up in our mail. The amount was small, but it brought a glow. We drove up to Campbell River to cash the cheque, and were about to go home to a clam chowder lunch when my partner hesitated.

"Those were my photographs they bought with that article," she said. "I can spend the money any way I want. I'm going to take us to Mr. Mike's for lunch."

A wonderful treat! We hadn't eaten out for many a month. That day also marked a turning-point. Reader's Digest bought an article soon after, and while we were still rejoicing in that strike, a shot-in-the-dark try at television scripting struck pay-dirt.

Yet, strangely, we remember that first hard year as one of our best. Surely one of life's finest gifts to a couple whose children are grown and gone is the chance to move out from the known and too-familiar along new paths.

We are not quite the same man and woman who left Victoria five years ago. Our values have changed, and so has our outlook. The fact of living matters more to us than life's material gifts. We neither brood on the past nor anticipate the future.

Oh yes — We still love Victoria, and incline to consider this up-Island community with its harsher winds and wilder rains no more than an outer suburb of Canada's fairest city. But we don't regret the breakaway. We are happy here, and we feel that we have been very lucky.

DRY WEATHER A NUISANCE

The dry season brings its share of nuisance calls to firemen, who put out nine grass, bush and beach fires over the weekend in Victoria.

Deputy fire chief Mike Heppell said some people who party on the beach walk off without extinguishing their bonfires — which incidentally, are contrary to parks bylaws — despite several weeks without rain.

Three of the blazes were in Beacon Hill Park, none serious.

Commonwealth Society Cooks Up a Dandy Project

It was Norma Gooday, member of the education committee of Vancouver Island Branch of the Royal Commonwealth Society, who first voiced the idea.

Why not produce a booklet of special Commonwealth recipes as a project for Queen Elizabeth's silver jubilee year.

Lillian Chambers, branch president, was in favor. So was the branch chairman, Rev. John Travis and the education committee chairman, James McPherrin.

Within days that idea was adopted and the project was given to McPherrin and his committee to implement.

"We knew it would mean a tremendous amount of work," Mrs. Chambers says, "but we had good response from the members and it wasn't long until a corp of volunteers was waiting in the wings."

Norma Gooday took on the work of contacting all branches of the society around the world, also the lieutenants-governor of any Canadian provinces where there are no branches, telling about the project and inviting recipes for the booklet.

British Columbia's Lieutenant-Governor Walter S. Owen, as patron of the Vancouver Island Branch, was also informed of the project, and Mrs. Owen submitted a recipe from Government House.

Other recipes started coming in, some with "very exotic" ingredients.

A conger eel, mangoes, raw fish, wheat hearts, kiwi fruit, castor sugar, hot maple syrup, Saskatoon berries, rose water and even marigold petals, for instance.

Titles were intriguing too. Koeksusters from South Africa, Vraic Buns from the Channel Islands, Bridgewater Manchips from Bristol, Love Cake from Sri Lanka and Escoveitch Fish from Jamaica, to name a very few.

As it happened while Mrs. Gooday was a professional typist and a teacher at Camosun College, she insisted she was not "all that good" as a cook.

KEY PERSONS in the recipe book project include James McPherrin, Vera Bell and Lillian Chambers.

So, whenever there was doubt about a recipe, it was turned over to Lillian Chambers to try out.

"Occasionally I did have to modify . . . perhaps change an ingredient . . . but that was not often," she says.

Then she added, rather quickly, "I'll confess I never did test that conger eel soup. It went in the booklet as it came to us from the Island of Jersey."

Finally the selection committee decided on approximately 130 recipes for printing, under headings of bread, desserts, fillings, beverages, conserves and soups, fish and seafoods, meat and meat dishes, poultry and game and vegetables and rice.

Here Mrs. Chambers explained that in order to keep the project within bounds "money-wise", the printers were asked if members of the educational committee could put the booklets together themselves.

That part of the project was placed in charge of Mrs. Vera Bell, assisted by Mrs. Norman Manson and Mrs. Charles Mayhew.

"The printers were very agreeable," Mrs. Bell tells you. "We worked right in the shop with them and they even armed us with the necessary staplers."

However, she explained further, "before we could touch the stapling we were faced with putting the pages together in proper order . . . collating it's called . . . this also as an economy move."

It was a long "and sometimes frustrating" job, she added "but at the same time, rewarding and interesting, too."

Now the booklets, with their silver-tones covers are off the press and in care of education committee chairman James McPherrin.

"Sample copies are going out to every branch and to every individual who gave us a recipe," Mrs. Chambers reports.

"Already the orders are beginning to come back. One of the first was from Prince Edward Island branch for 100 copies."

Any money raised from the project will be used for Royal Commonwealth Society programs centred on informing youth about the 36 countries of the Commonwealth.

This year, for instance, six young Victorians in the 17-year-age group attended a Commonwealth Youth conference in Ottawa and "it is hoped to continue this effort every year," Mrs Chambers says.

There is also an essay contest on Commonwealth subjects sponsored by the society in London, England, she explained.

"We collect the British Columbia essays, judge them, award prizes and then send the winning ones on the London for world competition."

The recipe booklets are priced at $2 each, or at $1.50 for one hundred or more.

You may order through Mrs. Nettey Hopkins, convener of cook book sales, P.O. Box 1448, Victoria, B.C., V8W 2X2.

Others who worked with James McPherrin on the education committee to make Norma Gooday's idea a success are Mrs. C. R. Stein, Mrs. Edna Gatt and P. J. Kitley.

Postscript: I hope it is merely a bit of mid-summer madness, but in case it is not, let me say, loud and clear, I am totally against turning the Crystal Garden site into a gambling casino complex.

No matter how straightforward the suggestion may be, no matter how well protected from infiltration by what we loosely call "the underworld", I do not believe Victoria is the place for this type of development.

Nor do I believe such a complex would be in keeping with what we already have in the attractive front entrance to our city—museum, archives, Parliament Buildings, waterfront development and the Empress Hotel.

I'm also sure there are thousands in this Greater Victoria area who believe as I do.

There are other ways to entice tourists to Victoria ways in keeping with the image we are striving to keep alive.

Eye Cream Withdrawn

OTTAWA (CP) — A cosmetics firm is withdrawing some of its product from the market because of bacterial contamination which could lead to infection and possible blindness.

The health department said that Estee Lauder Cosmetics Ltd. of Agincourt, Ont., is withdrawing the 30-millilitre size of Super Rich Eye Cream bearing lot number CAB-6.

A spokesman said samples of the product contain pseudomonas aeruginosa, a bacteria which could cause infection to the eyelids and cornea.

"In case of infection of the cornea, a delay in obtaining effective medical treatment may result in vision impairment and possibly blindness," he said.

The bacteria was not found in other sizes of the cream product, the spokesman said.

BOOKLET OUTLINES WOMEN'S FAMILY ROLE

MONTREAL (CP) — The role of women in the modern family is the subject of a new booklet released by the Advisory Council on the Status of Women.

The Family in the New Society, the eighth addition to the council's Person Papers, is a series of publications on areas where women still face discrimination.

The 32-page booklet highlights factors which have affected family life, such as the women's liberation movement, development of effective birth control methods, the increasing incidence of divorce and the growing number of women in the labor force.

Television and school textbooks are singled out as two major offending influences tending to reinforce woman's traditional family role as dependent housewife and mother.

The booklet advocates reform in family law, including creation of a single high-level family court which would handle problems currently dealt with in a variety of courts at the federal and provincial level.

The council also recommends changes in law and government policy on divorce, child care, birth control, abortion and property rights.

Other books in the Person Paper series focus on the costs of motherhood, tax law, health hazards and fringe benefits at work, rape, family planning and property rights in marriage.

The booklets are free and may be obtained by writing to the council.

Create an Atmosphere

By PAULINE GRAVES

Some rooms seem warm and friendly, while others are cold, and this has nothing to do with temperature. Accessories, colors and patterns create a room's mood, and expense is not the determining factor.

Exemplifying this premise is the room shown here, by interior designer, Norman Colburt. Obviously, this room belongs to a young girl, and it is soft, feminine and pretty. The furniture does not dictate this feeling because only basic styles were chosen, a narrow, single bed with a white seersucker spread, and a plain chest of drawers beside it. The large, 6-foot diameter mural above the bed does set the scheme. Everything in the room is subordinate to the idyllic woodland scene, peacefully enjoyed by a lovely young girl and her tranquil animal friends. Only in a room like this would the mural, of a dreamy young girl, fit so well.

Other touches relate the furniture to the picture-set mood. The mural takes over the function of a headboard, which finishes off the end of the bed. And ruffled eyelet pillow and neck pillow follow through with the scheme. A few flowers painted on the chest soften its angular lines, and the maple bedside lamp table wi th its turned post has a soft look about it.

The occupant of this room might captain the softball team, and be old-dependable at hockey. But when she comes home to this kind of a room, she is all feminine, even if her baseball mitt lands on the bed.

wheels

Dear Mike: A year ago I had the engine in my 1967 Chevrolet rebuilt, with a one-year, 12,000-mile warranty. Almost immediately after I got the car back, a rocker arm broke. The garage fixed it free. Then one of the hydraulic valve lifters froze, and it's still frozen. This they refused to repair. The engine runs, but it's very noisy. What's the best way to make the garage honor the warranty? — STEAMED.

Dear Steamed: If you feel you truly have a legitimate gripe, you might take the problem to small-claims court. Read the warranty carefully, though, and be sure you can document the lifter's collapse as happening before the warranty expired.

Dear Mike: I have a new 1977 Volare Premier with air conditioning. When I turn on the air, the entire car vibrates as I'm waiting at red lights with the engine idling. The mechanic says they all do this and not to worry. I can't believe they'd build a car that shakes like a cocktail mixer every time I run the air conditioner. Please help. — BAD VIBES.

Dear Vibes: Chrysler Corp. air-conditioning compressors have been notorious shakers for years. Sometimes the vibrations can be reduced by re-tensioning the drivebelt, but there's always some roughness. And the mechanic is right — it doesn't hurt anything.

Hints on Finishing Off Gypsum Board

By A. J. HAND
(c) 1977, Popular Science

When you build a wall with gypsum board, nailing the stuff up is less than half the battle. Once it's up on the wall, you'll have to finish it off. This involves covering the nail heads with a puttylike compound and taping the joints between sheets of wallboard. Here's how to do it:

Use ready-mixed joint compound. This is cheapest by the five-gallon pail. You'll also need about 250 feet of paper wallboard tape (for the average room) and at least two wallboard knives. These are simply flexible putty knives. Get one four inches wide and another 10 inches wide. A special right-angle knife for working in corners is handy, but not necessary.

Get the feel of your knife by puttying the nail heads. Pick up a dab of compound on the four-inch knife and spread it over a nail head. Hold the knife at a low angle as shown in the sketch (this is the right angle for all compounding operations). Use smooth, even pressure, flexing the blade of the knife slightly.

If the head of the nail shows through the compound, give the nail a tap with a hammer to drive it slightly below surface. Then resmooth the compound. Let the compound dry. Then apply a second light coat of compound. When that dries, put on a third.

Keep the last two coats light. Be careful not to leave behind any ridges of excess compound or you'll have to sand them away later.

While you are waiting for the compound on the nail heads to dry, you can start taping. Use the four-inch knife to apply a bedding coat of compound to the joint between two sheets of wallboard. Fill the slight recess formed by the tapered wallboard edges. Then apply the paper joint tape smoothly, centered over the joint. Press it firmly into the bed of compound by drawing the knife along the run of tape.

Use enough pressure to embed the tape in the compound, but not so much pressure that you squeeze all the compound out from under the tape. This will create a poor bond, and the tape will bubble up, leaving a bump on the wall.

Feather this first coat of compound out smoothly to a width of about eight inches. Don't worry too much about low spots and valleys at this point, but don't create ridges. You can always fill low spots on subsequent coats, but ridges can only be removed by sanding. This means extra work and a lot of unpleasant dust.

After the taped joint has dried (this may take a full day), apply a scond coat of compound. Use the 10-inch knife this time, and feather the second coat out to a width of about 10 or 11 inches. When that coat dries, apply a third, feathered out to about 14 inches. See the sketch.

Inside corners are done almost like joints. The only difference: You fold the tape lengthwise along its centreline before you embed it in place. Wallboard tape is usually creased on its centreline to make this fold easy. Just fold the tape to an approximate right angle and smooth it into place with the four-inch knife. Then triple coat as usual. One warning: Avoid heavy build-ups of compound in the corner. Excess compound may crack at a later date.

If your job includes outside corners, reinforce them with metal corner beads. These nail in place with dry-wall nails. Once they are up, give them the usual three-coat treatment.

When you think everything has been triple-coated to your satisfaction, check your work by shining a light at a low angle along each wall. Imperfections will be revealed by their shadows. You can remove slight ridges by rubbing with a damp sponge. Heavy ridges will require sanding with 120 paper wrapped around a block. Work lightly to avoid scuffing the paper skin on the gypsum board. Fill low spots with another coat of compound.

To finish up, sand very lightly, wipe off any dust and prime the wall with a coat of wallboard primer. Now you are ready to paint or paper.

Puppy Love Can Bite

DEAR ABBY: Do you think a teenager can experience love? Who do older people say, "It's only puppy love," or "a crush"? Isn't that real love?—WANTS TO KNOW

DEAR WANTS: A teenager's "crush" or "puppy love" is as real as mature love is to an adult.

Teenagers suffer the same longings, yearnings, heartaches and excitement that older lovers experience. And the pains of puppy love are deeper because the frustrations are greater.

DEAR ABY: My husband and I own a boat. We both love boating and so do our children.

Here's the problem: My husband can't swim a stroke, and he refuses to wear a life preserver. He says he has to die sometime, and he doesn't care how he goes.

We have five children, Abby. They range from 13 years old down to 3. I get frightened half to death when we are in the boat with him, and the waters get rough or a storm comes up. I am becoming a nervous wreck over this. Can you suggest something?—NEWPORT

DEAR NEWPORT: Tell your "hero" that even if HE doesn't care how he goes, YOU do. And you also care WHEN! Remind him that you didn't have those five children without his help, and you don't intend to raise them alone, either. That ought to buoy the old boy up.

DEAR ABBY: Every year my daughter and her children have visited us and stayed all summer, and each year the children grow a little bolder.

Last summer my home was bedlum! The children kept the stereo going full-blast night and day, refused to pick up after themselves, ate all day long and abused our lovely furniture. They partied at night and left the mess for me to clean up in the morning.

They had their teenage friends running in and out and never bothered to introduce one of them to their grandfather or me. (Their mother said teenagers NEVER introduce their friends to anyone, not even to their parents. I was shocked to hear the rude manner in which those children talked back to their mother, and she didn't say a word.

If I had treated my elders that way, my mother would have worn out a willow switch on me. Summer is upon us, and I am dreading it. Have you any advice for me?—GRAM

DEAR GRAM: No advice, just sympathy. If you put up with those hooligans another summer, you've asked for it. Apparently you failed to teach your daughter what your mother taught you: Respect for one's elders. For if you had, she'd have passed it on to HER children. And perhaps something else would have been passed on: the willow switch.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

The winners of the Mixed Pairs event during the 1977 Spring National Championships were Alan Truscott and his wife, Dorothy Hayden Truscott. They are two of our nation's top-ranked players. In addition, Alan is the bridge columnist for the New York Times, while Dorothy is a bridge author in her own right.

To triumph is such an event as the Mixed Pairs (439 of our continent's top pairs were entered) requires not only skill and luck, but also the creation of situations where the opponents are forced to guess — and they misguess. An example of this latter point is illustrated in today's deal, which contributed to the Truscotts' victory.

★ ★ ★

At virtually every table South arrived at a four-spade contract via the bidding sequence described above. And most of the tables South made 11 tricks, losing only two tricks to West's red aces. But it was a different story when North-South arrived at a four-spade contract against Mr. and Mrs. Truscott.

Dorothy elected to open her diamond ace, and at trick two smoothly shifted to the eight of hearts. Declarer was now put to a guess which couldn't be deferred: whether to put up the king, hoping that West was underleading the ace; or, instead, to play low from dummy, hoping that West was leading away from the queen of hearts.

After prolonged thought (and agonizing), South chose to play low from dummy. Truscott captured this trick with his queen and returned a diamond, which Mrs. Truscott ruffed. She wasted no time cashing the ace of hearts, for the setting trick.

Even if declarer had made the winning guess at trick two by putting up dummy's king of hearts, the Truscotts would still have received an average score since Mrs. Truscott couldn't be prevented from eventually making a trick with her ace of hearts.

How to Keep Cut Flowers Fresh

Cut flowers in the house during warm summer days are more easily kept fresh than in a winter heated home — that is, if cut at the proper stage of development and treated carefully.

Indoor temperatures may be even higher in summer than in winter but there is likely to be more outdoor air circulating through the house from open doors and windows.

Cutting is done with either sharp flower shears or a sharp knife being careful not to damage the plant by tugging at foliage or roots. Each cut stem is put into a pail of water, taken around the garden as cutting proceeds. This immediate setting into water prevents sealing over of the cut surface which inhibits intake of water.

Time of day has direct effect on the lasting qualities of flowers. If wanted particularly for evening display, cut the flowers in early morning before heated by the sun's warmth. Stems will be filled with sap at that time, and even difficult flowers like violets and pansies will last if cut in early morning and put at once into water.

Flowers fade soon after pollination. In a garden where bees are seen in quantity, daisy-type flower with open yellow centres need to be cut just before the yellow pollen becomes dry. The right stage is soon familiar with experience. The flower centres should be a light yellow all over; when brownish areas appear, pollination has been effected and the flower will soon fade.

Roses, stocks and snapdragons, all cut in the young stages before full development of the flowers will stiffen well in deep water if cut 24 hours before they are wanted for display.

If pressed for time, a safe general rule is to cut garden flowers after the sun has passed from the plants in evening, putting them one by one into the pail of water. Leave overnight in a cold dark place, and prepare for display the next morning.

Flowers should never be crowded into a narrow-topped vase. Air must reach the water, and that point is even more important than changing the water each day. The water level must be maintained, so pour in enough to bring it up, especially in a small vase having large flowers like peonies or large chrysanthemums.

Low bowls usually have enough water surface exposed to become aerated. It is easily seen whether additional water is needed, perhaps twice daily in hot weather if the flowers are large or if the arrangement is crowded with many flowers and large leaf surfaces.

Most homemakers today know about splitting or crushing flower stems which are thick or woody. Roses, peonies, chrysanthemums and shrub branches are examples. The older the shrub the more it should be crushed before putting into water. Crushing exposes more cells to take in water.

When finally arranging the flowers, remove lower leaves which would be under water. Leaves of zinnias, stocks, asters and chrysanthemums quickly become soggy under water making it slimy, smelly and unable to take in air to keep it fresh.

Draughts and sunshine evaporate moisture from flowers and foliage so keep the cut flowers in as cool a place as possible indoors.

The wider the surface of clean water around the cut flowers, the longer-lasting will be the bouquet or arrangement.

SOLAR-TECH has a solar heating system that makes sense.
The SOLAR-AIRE SYSTEM can store and maintain storage of BTUs by the millions for many days of heating without sunshine. The system functions well where there are relatively poor sunshine factors.
The SOL-AIRE SYSTEM contains a patented solar collector panel, a patented self-stacking storage tray system (utctic salts) and co-ordinating controls. Heated air from the collectors is absorbed by the trays, which store enough heat for several days. There is minimal maintenance for the system and it is now being installed in over 20 locations in Canada and the United States.

Proxy War Develops

Washington Post

TAIBE, Lebanon — The fitful battle for control of southern Lebanon has evolved from a brutal replay of this country's civil war into a proxy war between Syria and Israel.

Both are openly supporting the rival sides in the struggle, Syria allied with Palestinian guerrilla forces and Israel backing Lebanese Christian militiamen.

It is trench warefare, conducted largely by shelling with artillery and rockets, bringing ruin and devastation to the villages and tobacco fields of this isolated region.

The confrontation carries the grave risk of all out war between Syria and Israel. But, in an odd way, this risk has also imposed a certain restraint, a set of unwritten rules, that keeps the two sides from going too far.

From the Palestinian guerrilla outpost atop a windswept hill outside this abandoned village, for example, Israeli positions are within rifle shot and Israeli towns within easy reach of heavier weapons.

Yet, the Palestinians seldom shoot at them.

This partly because they would be defenseless if the Israelis responded with air strikes, but also according to well-placed sources, because the Syrians have told them not to, fearing that it could touch off a war with Israel for which Syria is not prepared.

The Israelis train and supply the Christian forces and, according to some reports, occasionally take part in the shooting.

They have not bombed or strafed the Palestinian positins, however.

Nor did they take action when troops of the Saira faction of Palestinians, many of them believed to be Syrian regulars, moved into the border area where Israel would not tolerate overt Syrian presence.

"There is an unwritten agreement that this is a proxy war," a Palestinian official said.

"The Syrians don't want us to provoke a war they might lose. But the Israelis are nibbling away at Lebanese territory."

Racquet Club 10 Years Old

Putting aside its financial problems, the Racquet Club of Victoria is celebrating its 10th anniversary at its Gordon Head location this week.

Junior fennis and badminton tournaments were held today and a splash party was planned from 3 to 8 p.m.

A fashion show, bridge and tennis matches will be featured in Tuesday's ladies' day program. An anniversary tea will be held Wednesday, to be followed by men's night.

A four-event bonspiel with 32 rinks competing starts at 7 p.m. Thursday and is due to end Sunday.

The club, the former Victoria Lawn Tennis Club, began in 1886, operating out of Belcher Street, now Rockland Avenue, between Cook and Vancouver Streets.

The first grass court lawn tennis tournament in Victoria was staged there.

In 1910 the club moved to 1920 Foul Bay Road, now the site of a shopping centre. The club was located there for 57 years before moving to its present location at the corner of McKenzie Avenue and Gordon Head Road.

Technique Found

TOULOUSE, France (AP) — A new technique for transcribing braille by computer has been developed by workers at the Paul Sabatier University here. Since 1969, they have been composing a program to translate French into Braille and replace manual transcription and the errors which can result.

Visit Opposed

PARIS (Reuter) — About 100 leftists demonstrated here Sunday against a three-day visit today by Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev. Witnesses said the demonstrators, apparently pro-Communist but anti-Soviet, paraded peacefully, but rightists protesting the visit Saturday clashed with police.

Israelis Deny Torture

LONDON (AP) — The Israeli embassy denies a report by the Sunday Times Accusing Israel of systematic torture of Arab prisoners and calls it a "vicious slander insulting to the only democratic government and free judiciary" in the Middle East.

The British newspaper says a team of reporters interviewed 44 Arabs who said they suffered beatings, electric shocks, sexual assaults and confinement in special torture cells.

The Sunday Times says its five-month investigation in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip indicated Israel's security services have used torture in the last 10 years to extract information, force confessions and discourage protests.

Gabriel Padon, press aide at the Israeli embassy, said the article was a collection of Arab atrocity stories similar or identical to those "repeatedly put out by Arab propaganda sources in recent years and that have proved to be totally invented in the light of detailed and documented investigations."

Padon said the Israeli government offered to check all the allegations before the Sunday Times published them, but the reporters rejected the proposal because "they did not want to be confused by the facts."

The newspaper quotes some Arab former prisoners as saying electric shocks, beatings and other abuse were applied to their genitals. Some reported being placed in a low, narrow box floored with sharp stones.

One Arab said he was forced to watch while Israelis beat and sexually abused his daughter, the newspaper says.

The Israeli government admits to holding about 700 Arabs for anti-Israeli demonstrations or security offences, but estimates from other sources run as high as 3,000.

Meanwhile, Menachem Begin and the Likud party Sunday signed an agreement with two smaller religious parties, completing the formation of a coalition government to be formally presented to Israel's parliament tonight.

U.S. Right Rumbling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Robert Dole says any move by President Carter to cut ties with Taiwan in order to recognize China would cause a "rumble" in Congress.

Calling recent Senate votes opposing administration moves on Vietnam and Cuba political "rattles on the right," Dole said that a move toward full diplomatic exchange with China at the expense of Taiwan would cause "more than a rattle ... it would be a rumble."

Dole was Gerald Ford's running mate in the U.S. presidential election last year, and while he says he is not seeking the role of chief foreign policy opposition spokesman in the Senate, he says he will be "very active" in pushing the conservative viewpoint.

From his perspective, the President is moving much too fast into untested areas on such problems as normalizing relations with Vietnam, bringing home 33,000 ground troops from South Korea, transferring control of the Panama Canal to Panama and improving relations with Cuba.

"I don't know what the rush is," he said. "I assume President Carter wants a foreign policy victory."

He showed his displeasure last week in several Senate debates and votes on foreign affairs issues.

One would require the U.S. to oppose loans by international banks to Vietnam; another withheld endorsement of Carter's troop withdrawal plan for South Korea and a third demanded concessions from Cuba in return for normalized relations.

Dole said his viewpoint, which he described as close to Ford's on foreign policy, is shared by a number of congressmen and the administration fears their opposition could prove troublesome.

He said administration officials fear significant opposition on the Vietnam and Korea issues might upset plans for full diplomatic relations with China.

Secrecy Backed

U.S. secretary of state Henry Kissinger says the Carter Administration is doing the same thing he once was criticized for—conducting diplomacy in secret.

Kissinger, in a copyrighted interview with the London Sunday newspaper The Observer, said, "the new administration is conducting foreign policy in terms of the sharing of tactical information no less restrictively than we did."

Kissinger, who once described himself as the "lone ranger" of international diplomacy, said that most serious negotiations require "an element of confidentiality."

FEAR OF SOVIETS SPURS GAS WAR

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sources say House of Representatives members on a congressional conference committee refused to halt programs to develop deadly nerve gas because they fear the Soviet Union's large chemical warfare capability.

The conference action, which still must get final approval from both houses of Congress, probably will end efforts to stop development of new nerve gas weapons by the U.S. army and navy.

Although the administration has renewed efforts to negotiate and outright ban with the Soviets on chemical warfare; no progress has been reported by a U.S.-Soviet working group studying the question.

The sources said it was fear of the large Soviet capability that prompted the House members to refuse to halt the U.S. programs.

Smoking.
What are you going to do about it?

If you've given up smoking more times than you'd like to remember, the chances are you enjoy it so much you don't want to give it up at all.

The question is, what are you going to do about it?

You've probably tried cigarettes that promise extra mildness and found yourself checking every once in a while to see if they were still lit. Which brought you right back to your regular brand.

Now, there is Vantage.

Vantage gives you the taste you want. The full, rich flavour of Virginia tobaccos. But here's the big difference. Vantage has a specially designed filter to give you so much of what you want in a cigarette with a lot less of what you don't want.

Vantage is not a heavy drag cigarette. You don't have to work hard getting the smoke through so that all the joy of smoking is lost.

Rich taste and easy draw. Good reasons for any thoughtful smoker to consider the new cigarette called Vantage.

We suggest you try a pack.

Warning: Health and Welfare Canada advises that danger to health increases with amount smoked—avoid inhaling. 11 mg. "tar" 0.8 mg. nicotine.

Alaska Oil Begins Inching Southward

PRUDHOE BAY, Alaska (UPI) — The "black gold" of Alaska's North Slope began its long-awaited trip to the American consumer today.

With monitors watching every inch of the 800-mile pipeline that took nine years and $9.9 billion to construct, oil started to flow toward the ice-free port of Valdez today at the initial rate of 300,000 barrels a day.

It will take 30-40 days for the oil, oozing southward at 1.1 miles per hour, to reach Valdez on Alaska's south coast, from where it will be shipped by tankers to West Coast refineries.

Within the year, officials of the controversial project expect 1.2 million barrels a day to be flowing through the pipeline supplying about 15 per cent of America's domestic crude oil requirements.

At exactly H a.m. Victoria time, an eight-foot long metal "pig", similar in shape to a huge bar bell, was pushed into the main pipeline inside pump station No. 1 on the Arctic shore of the North Slope.

The "pig" followed nitrogen already in the pipeline and was pushed along by oil let in behind.

The oil flow was activated from the Alaska operations control centre in Valdez, 799 miles away.

Official government go-ahead was granted to the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. consortium Sunday by the U.S. Interior Department.

The U.S. government said, however, it was prepared to halt operations if its monitoring teams find a danger "to human life, natural resources or the environment."

"By approving startup, we are not signifying that we believe this entire transportation system — pipeline, terminal, and marine tanker routes — is absolutely perfect," Undersecretary James Joseph said in Washington.

"We do believe, however, that the national need for oil from Arctic Alaska far outweighs the importance of any remaining potential problems. A careful analysis of matters still unresolved has convinced me that this oil transport system is capable of operating safely and with minimum adverse affects on the environment."

$132M Boost For Welfare Programs

OTTAWA (CP) — The government introduced new welfare legislation today to clear the way for greater federal spending on a wide range of social services, including day care and aid to the old and disabled.

A new social services bill, introduced in the Commons by Health and Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde, would increase federal welfare spending by $132 million to an estimated $616 million next year and set out new terms for cost-sharing between Ottawa and the provinces.

Welfare officials said the bill does away with the old notion of providing government subsidies only to the poor and would allow Ottawa to share equally with the provinces in paying for numerous programs needed by people regardless of their incomes.

However, a so-called user-pay formula would apply to some provincially-run programs, including day care, home support services, transport for the disabled and employment and job counselling. Ottawa would only contribute 50-per-cent subsidies up to a maximum based on the individual user's income and family size.

The legislation, the result of federal-provincial finance ministers' and officials' conferences, would replace the 1961 Vocational Rehabilitation of Disabled Persons Act and parts of the 1966 Canada Assistance Plan.

It was introduced Monday to meet Lalonde's commitment to bring it before Parliament by summer. However, it is not expected to be passed and come into force until Jan. 1 at the earliest, officials said.

Under the legislation, Ottawa would for the first time share equally with the provinces in the financing of the following programs:

—Crisis intervention, including rape crisis centres, suicide hot lines and distress lines where individuals could call for advice.

—Family planning clinics, including counselling and referral services.

—Children's services, including headstart programs for the retarded, the hyperactive and children with what the government calls "severe behavioral problems."

—Social integration services, including half-way houses for former mental patients and criminals.

—Home support services, including homemaker services and "meals on wheels" for the old, the disabled the ill and the poor.

—Community preventative services, such as family life, pre-natal and child-care education; nutritional supplements for children and pregnant women and "cultural enrichment" programs.

MS Victims Plead for Aid

About 25 multiple sclerosis victims made a plea to the provincial government today to allow vitamins to be covered by Pharmacare.

Group spokesman Dale Humphries said the placard-carrying protesters plan to picket the legislature again Tuesday in an attempt to gain a meeting with Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm.

Shortly before Pharmacare, the provincial drug subsidy program, was expanded to include all B.C. residents earlier this month, Vander Zalm said vitamins, because they are non-prescription drugs, would not be covered.

Humphries, who estimates there are thousands of people in B.C. who benefit from massive doses of vitamins prescribed in megavitamin therapy, said it costs about $110 a month in the beginning months of the therapy, and then as much as $35-$50 a month for life.

Vander Zalm is expected to meet next week with Victoria doctor Abraham Hoffer, a supporter of the therapy.

Humphries, himself a victim of MS, who was helped by megavitamins therapy, said the B.C. Committee For Orthomolecular Medicine has been trying for several months to meet the minister to present testimonials from people who have been helped by the therapy.

He said many victims of MS would be institutionalized if they could not afford the cost.

One of the demonstrators, 21-year-old Colleen Leeke, of Victoria, said it costs her $125 a month to keep up her megavitamin dosage.

If her parents could not help out with the bill, she said, she would be living in an institution instead of being a working, productive citizen.

She said she thinks the megavitamin therapy will soon be an accepted treatment for diseases such as hers, "but with something like this you just can't wait. People are in pain."

NEWS BRIEFS

Security Tight

TORONTO (CP) — So tight was security connected with the two, 90-minute programs on organized crime in Canada that even high-level members of CBC staff were completely unaware of the investigations. See story on Page 11.

Doctors Ask More

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Medical Association, which has turned down a government offer of a 5.1 per cent fee increase, is returning to the bargaining table asking for the full settlement allowed by the Anti-Inflation board and other benefits, according to the BCMA News. BANGKOK (UPI) — Cambodian forces killed five Thai marines in a weekend border clash along a section of disputed frontier.

CUPE Eyes Strikes Against Wage Curbs

VERNON (CP) — The Canadian Union of Public Employees may start rotating strikes to protest the provincial government's support of continued wage controls, delegates to the CUPE B.C. division's annual convention decided during the weekend.

CUPE will seek support to fight controls from the B.C. Federation of Labor and provincial labor councils.

The convention was also told that the Social Credit government had done nothing about unemployment.

Karen Sanford, New Democratic Party labor critic, said Social Credit had, in fact, made unemployment worse.

She said all the Socreds are interested in doing is balancing the books and making sure they take care of "their own".

As an example, she cited the removal of succession duties, which has been criticized as helping only rich people.

CUPE delegates also voted unanimously to oppose any attempt by the B.C. government to introduce right-to-work legislation.

MOST IGNORANT OF MONARCHY

TORONTO (CP) — A public opinion poll completed for the CBC program News Magazine indicates that most Canadians are ignorant of the monarchy.

The poll, conducted for the program by a Toronto research firm and broadcast on the show Sunday, shows that 85 per cent of urban Canadians know that Canada is a parliamentary democracy, 64 per cent know it is a federation, but only 29 per cent know Canada is a monarchy.

The program said that 51 per cent of those polled believe Canada should continue with the monarchy, 41 per cent say it should not, and eight per cent are undecided.

It said most pro-monarchists live in the Prairies and the Maritimes, while most against live in Quebec.

Fredericton RCMP Pinching Themselves

FREDERICTON (CP) — Five officers and a woman office worker in the local RCMP detachment apparently shared in a $1-million winning ticket on the Sunday night Loto Canada draw staged in Halifax.

Serita Hinchey and the five Mounties — Sgt. Fred Barton and four others who did not want their names used — held ticket number 1609333, last $1-million winner draw in the lottery.

A 43-year-old bachelor, John Brown of Ingersoll, Ont., was also one of the "instant millionaires" after the draw.

Mrs. Hinchey said she thought she held a $100 winner when she looked at the ticket in her hand.

Her husband said she was wrong. It was a $1,000 winner. She looked again and started screaming when she saw it was a $1-million winner.

Broadbent Sure Cover-Up Tried

OTTAWA (CP) — NDP Leader Ed Broadbent said today he is convinced that either the RCMP or former solicitor-general Jeane-Pierre Goyer attempted to cover-up force involvement in a 1972 illegal police raid on a left-wing Montreal news agency.

"There's no doubt about it at all," Broadbent told a news conference shortly after asking Speaker James Jerome to hold an emergency debate on the case.

Amin Reported Missing

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — One of Kenya's leading newspapers says President Idi Amin of Uganda is missing after an attempt to assassinate him during the weekend.

Government officials in Kampala, the capital of neighboring Uganda, said by telephone that as far as they know the report is inaccurate. But an unidentified Ugandan who answered the telephone at Amin's residence at Entebbe, 19 miles southwest of Kampala, said: "We don't know where he is or what has happened to him."

Radio Uganda reported that Amin might attend a "refugee day" celebration in western Uganda today.

However, in a later news bulletin, the radio dropped its report that the president would attend the ceremonies. It made no mention of the Ugandan leader.

Ideas Vary On Controls

OTTAWA (CP) — The government was told today it should end wage and price controls immediately, that it should keep the controls until their scheduled expiry at the end of 1978 and that it also should remove the restraints next Jan. 2. This conflicting advice was showered on the government in free-wheeling sessions with 15 business, labor and public interest groups in "continuing consultations" on post-controls issues and related matters.

Cabinet ministers at the sessions also received generous advice about issues as far-ranging as fisheries, freedom of information and northern pipelines.

The only areas of agreement seemed to be that the government continue its talks with the various interest groups on economic planning and that a monitoring agency for wages and prices be kept when controls end.

But at least one organization, the Employers' Council of British Columbia, warned that its participation in any future consulting body depends on the function of that council solely as an information-gathering unit.

And the Consumers Association of Canada told the six-member group of ministers, headed by Treasury Board President Robert Andras, that it agrees with the federal commitment to end compulsory controls at an early date.

The association added, however, that a prices review agency should be set up for the post-controls period.

The Employers' Council of British Columbia, appearing for 70 corporations which employ half the province's labor force, said that Jan. 2, 1978, is its preferred time to start phasing out controls.

This would mean that the initial round of agreements, which the council says will be crucial, fall mainly among privately - employed union members, and will reflect the constraints of the marketplace.

An earlier decontrol date would mean that more settlements involving government workers would be up for negotiation.

Canadians Illiterate, U.K. Reporter Claims

LONDON (CP) — Canadians are portrayed as illiterate but healthy materialists in a guide to prospective British emigrants published this week in a London newspaper.

In an article on "the great emigration gamble," Peter Taylor of The Sunday Telegraph set out to describe "what life really is like on the other side of the immigration barriers."

Taylor limited his itinerary to Toronto, Vancouver and Victoria, and said of the latter city that its pseudo-English look, "is everything I had feared."

"For all my doubts about where Canada's heart lies," he concludes, "there are some staggering opportunities for those who earnestly seek them."

On his way to this conclusion, however, Taylor presses some tender Canadian nerves.

After mocking the way a French-Canadian stewardess spoke English on his flight to Toronto, he describes the city's skyscrapers glittering in the sunset—"a reminder, if it were needed, that in style and substance Canada is all-American."

"Canadians themselves regard their neighbors south of the border as louder and brasher, but the difference is generally too subtle for the British eye," he says, offering a vignette of some paunchy middleaged men in bright jackets, check pants and white shoes walking stiff-legged as gunslingers into a hotel bar.

He notes that Canada's ethnic communities have retained distinct identities, unlike those of the United States.

"The melting pot has failed. Perhaps it is too cold."

After talking to a number of British emigres in Canada, he writes that Britons can get richer by moving to Canada. He adds that "the catch is that you usually have to work harder."

Taylor also reports Canadians are active in sports and the great outdoors.

"Canada is unnervingly healthy."

Taylor adds a piece of advice for emigrants to Canada: Don't ever tell a Canadian that "in England we used to do it such-and-such a way." You will be taken as a know-all Limey and advised to return to England.

Taylor also recounts what immigrants in Canada think about Britain.

Paddy Sherman, publisher of the Vancouver Province, is quoted as complaining of British bureaucrats and the fact that no shop would rent him a tape-recorder during a recent visit.

"There is no doubt in my mind that there is less government in Canada, and therefore less bureaucracy."

Taylor also remarks that he saw in Toronto's public places none of the spray-can slogans and invectives that smear many of London's walls. He goes on to quote an acquaintance as explaining: "Canadians have no opinions."

Overboard Sailor Finds Phone

A man who fell overboard from a tug early today rescued himself by swimming to an island, finding a pay phone and calling the police.

At 11:48 p.m. the tug Black Savage alerted the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre at CFB Esquimalt that they had lost a man over the side between Gibsons Landing and Bowen Island.

Missing was Leonard James of Langley, B.C.

The coast guard hovercraft and the coast guard cutter Moorhen were despatched from Vancouver. At 1:25 a.m. a Labrador helicopter and Buffalo aircraft were airborne from CFB Comox.

Meanwhile James, who had fallen from the stern of the tug, was busy swimming.

He swam to Keats Island, although he wasn't aware where he was at the time.

He phoned the Royal Canadian Mounted Police detachment at Gibsons Landing.

An RCMP spokesman said today they received James' call at 1:35 a.m. Because he didn't know where he was they had to figure out which island would have a convenient pay phone. It had to be Keats Island.

They chartered the Gambier Island Water Taxi, picked James up and delivered him back safe aboard.

★ PAIR DROWNED

Two Lower Mainland canoeists drowned Saturday in a boating mishap in Nitinat Lake.

Lake Cowichan RCMP said a fishing vessel spotted the body of one man in the sea off Carmanah Point, and the second body washed up on the beach with their overturned canoe and outboard motor.

Police were notified of the accident about 11 p.m. Saturday and flew to the remote area by helicopter.

They identified the men as Gerry Allan Smith, 29, of Whonnock, and Gary Stephen Vaughan, 27, whose address was not given.

The pair had been canoeing in Nitinat Lake and may have upset when they tried to run the tidal narrows which are exposed to breakers from the open Pacific, police said.

Carmanah is about nine miles south of the narrows near the village of Clo-oose.

LOST-AND-FOUND DEPT.

Police Evidence Is Mounting That People Are Still Honest

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Diogenes never found an honest man. But Victoria police Sgt. Doug Wilson says he has.

In fact, Wilson says he's found quite a few.

Wilson heads the police department's lost-and-found section. Rarely does a day pass that someone doesn't bring in something found abandoned or lost on city streets or parks.

And that's proof enough for him to conclude there are, at least, some honest people around.

What impresses Wilson most is the number of times cash is turned in. Since March, the total is well over $250.

Most are small amounts, like a 12-year-old boy who found $1 bill on the street or an elderly woman who discovered 70 cents in an envelope left on a bench in Bastion Square.

Some of the amounts are larger. One recent find was a bundle of bills totalling $170. It still hasn't been claimed.

Wilson says he keeps the cash 90 days and if it isn't claimed by then, the money goes to the finder — if the finder wants it.

"It's surprising how many tell us they don't want the money and ask us to donate it to their favorite charity," he says.

The lost-and-found section is busiest during the summer months. In May, 83 items were turned in; only 33 were claimed.

Wilson's biggest headache is finding space to store the articles. The back room of his office on the fourth floor of the Fisgard Street station looks like a flourishing used-goods business.

"You'll find just about anything you can name here," he says.

On the shelves are stacks of clothing, handbags, wallets, a half dozen fire extinguishers (all empty), five cameras, ice skates, skis, several pairs of eyeglasses, a hairdryer, a sleeping bag, three guitars (one electric), a tapestry, four motorcycle helmets, five toolboxes, a radio tape deck — even, if you can imagine, a pair of crutches and a set of false teeth.

There is a televison set found in the 800-block Yates last September, a lamp shade left on the sidewalk at Pandora and Johnson in March, and a large bag containing a tent, camping materials and machete someone found in Beacon Hill Park last June.

Wilson opens a drawer of a cabinet and takes out a fistful of keys. He opens another drawer to show about 20 watches and a third to reveal a collection of rings, necklaces and bracelets.

Efforts are made to track down the owners, but it's no easy task.

"Most of the purses and handbags have no ID in them and, in the few that do, there are often as many as six different sets of ID. We send off letters but seldom get answers," said Wilson.

Police are required under the Municipal Act to keep the found property for three months. After that they can dispose of the articles as they see fit.

Wilson says the eyelgasses go to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. The clothing normally ends up at Goodwill or the Salvation Army. The rest goes to public auction held sporadically as the need dictates.

Wilson feels the public should be made more aware of the lost-and-found service.

"If someone loses something this should be the first place to check," he says.

He cites a recent example of a woman who lost an expensive watch. She ran ads in the local papers for a week. Wilson noticed the ad and gave her a call.

Sure enough, he had her watch.

"She couldn't believe it," he says. "She came up and told me she didn't know we did this sort of thing. She was one happy customer."

Boilermakers Urging Steel Plant to Stay

The Boilermakers Union wants Quadra Steel Ltd. to reconsider its decision to close its plant in Victoria.

Neil Hindle, business agent for Local 191 of the union, said Saturday he intends to meet with company president Jack Harrison in Vancouver.

"We'll be asking him to take a second look at the decision," Hindle said.

The company announced last week it would close because other manufacturing companies are leaving the city and the market for steel products is dwindling as a consequence.

The closure is to take effect sometime within the next three months and will involve the loss of 15 jobs.

Hindle disputed the company's reason for shutting down.

"To say it's because industries are leaving Victoria is just not valid, not true," he said. "There is no justification in my mind for the company taking such action."

Hindle said the company's claim that Victoria steel needs could be serviced from its Nanaimo office is not good enough.

"If a large corporation has to lower its corporate flag in Victoria, then I'd say something must be wrong with management."

Hindle said there is a danger corporations may get the attitude Victoria isn't a good place to carry out business.

"It's group psychology. One firm sees another pack up and leave and begins to wonder if it should get in the same boat. Before you know it, you have a stampede."

Hindle said the problems in the local economy are no more evident than in the shipbuilding and ship repair industry which provides the bulk of the jobs for members of his union.

He described the situation as "just terrible" and noted 36 per cent of the 450 union members are currently unemployed.

"It's bad enough when we have to send men out of the province to try to find them work in Alberta or Saskatchewan, but even worse when we see men who can't find a job, have used up their unemployment insurance and are forced to go on welfare."

Hindle said the solution to Victoria's economic woes lie not so much in attracting new industry as in helping industry already established here.

"The time has come for the corporate community to release its financial energies for shipbuilding and repair which has always been one of out most important industries.

"We're all going to have to make an effort to free enterprise," he said.

Hindle, who was re-elected business agent of the local in elections last Tuesday, said he intends to initiate discussions with industry leaders and politicians at both the federal and provincial levels and will press for action.

"Unemployment should be a non-partisan matter but it's a matter that has to be fought vigorously."

BABY'S STROLLER became a receptacle for book bargains Saturday as Dixie Sackett and seven-month-old daughter Brooke emerged from the second annual sale of surplus books held by Greater Victoria Public Library at First United Church hall. Most of the 12,000 books offered were picked up by eager buyers, particularly late in the day as books went for 50 cents an armful. Proceeds amounted to about $3,400, a library spokesman said today.

Accused No-Show

A bench warrant was issued today for the arrest of Stephen Robert Williams, 30, who failed to appear for his Assize trial on a charge of rape.

Crown counsel Brian Smith said an earlier warrant was issued four days ago when the prosecution was told for the first time that Williams wasn't reporting to a native court worker under terms of his bail.

Court worker Wayne Paul said Williams had been reporting for a time but not since early April and he agreed he didn't tell anybody about this or enlist the support of police.

He said the last address he had for Williams was 344 Cook.

Questioned by Mr. Justice Samuel Toy, Paul said no one had told him what should happen if a person on bail fails to report as required by court order.

Toy said a court reporter, a deputy registrar, at least three deputy sheriffs, defence and crown counsel, judge and a panel of 53 jurors "were all brought together to try Willias and he's not here."

He asked Smith to inform the attorney-general that people designated to act in "some form of surveillance" over people granted bail are apparently doing this without knowledge or guidance as to their responsibilities.

Toy said in addition to the inconvenience there was perhaps the cost of $1,000 for Williams' failure to appear. He ordered the case put over to the next Assizes.

Outside School Workers Turn Down GVLRA Pact

Greater Victoria school board outside workers have rejected a tentative agreement reached last week with the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Asssociation.

Union spokesman Bob Cunningham said today the 300 members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 382, turned down the package Sunday night because it doesn't contain a clause prohibiting the contracting out of work.

The count of the secret ballot was not released.

Cunningham said negotiators made it clear to the members that there will be no strike over the issue and negotiations will continue with the GVLRA.

Meanwhile, members of the Esquimalt CUPE local have voted to accept the agreement and four other locals have yet to conduct ratification ballots.

Cunningham, who is the representative for Local 382 as well as spokesman for CUPE's joint bargaining committee, said the committee will decide whether the school board employees will be allowed to opt out of the joint group and bargain alone with the GVLRA.

The CUPE locals banded together under the understanding that any settlement would have to be unanimous.

GVLRA negotiator Carl Anshelm said today he expects the employers will sign with the five other locals, if they accept, and then continue bargaining with the school board workers.

However, he held out litle hope that the association will budge on the contracting-out clause.

Anshelm said he sees no evidence for the employees' fears that they are going to be sub-contracted out of existence.

ROAD CHECK NABS THREE

Three motorists were given roadside suspensions by Oak Bay police during a 1½-hour roadblock early Saturday.

Several of the 125 drivers stopped at Fort and Foul Bay between 1:30 and 3 a.m. had been drinking, but none were sufficiently impaired to be charged, police said.

About 25 tickets for minor infractions or mechanical checkups were issued.

Brake Cutter 'Mad at World'

Whoever cut the brake lines on four moving vans in Victoria West at the weekend must have been "mad at the world," owner William DiCastri said today.

He has offered a $500 reward for information resulting in an arrest for the vandalism that caused one of the vehicles to hit a bus on Craigflower at Raynor Saturday morning.

The bus was full of people but no one was hurt.

"It must have been somebody not just mad at me; they're mad at the world," said DiCastri, proprietor of Save-Way Movers.

Driver Rick Vosburgh had just left the moving company property and was driving slowly toward the intersection and attempting to stop as the bus approached. His brakes failed and he pulled the handbrake while attempting to turn away from the bus, which he hit broadside just behind the exit door.

Examination showed the brake lines on that truck and three others parked on the company lot had been pried away from their connections with something like a crowbar, DiCastri said.

Electrical wiring for the lights also had been ripped out.

DiCastri discounted a suggestion the damage might have been done by a business competitor. His competition is more national than local, he said, and besides, "I think an adult man would have more brains than that."

Anyone wanting to damage the business could have stopped the trucks by some other means than wrecking the brakes and endangering the public, DiCastri said.

We Left Our Worries Down the Highway

FOR WIN AND ME, Wednesday is an anniversary of sorts. Five years ago on June 22, we left Victoria with a cranky little cat, a commission to write for you once a week, and a plan based less on logic than on hope.

We loved Victoria. Our son and most of our friends were there. But the ordered suburban life had palled on us. We were ready for a new adventure.

So we drove north to this house between sea and highway at the edge of the Campbell River country, and to a different way of life.

Five years ago? If it weren't for my desk calendar with its reminders of deadlines to meet and appointments to keep, I'd find that hard to believe. The time seems to have passed all in a rush since that day of an earlier June when we ducked under a waterfall from an overflowing roof-gutter to take possession.

We should have been worried. Apart from this once-a-week screed and an iron ration from the sale of our Victoria house which we were committed not to touch, we had no visible means of support. Curiously, though, we had left our worries somewhere down the road.

Changes have been made. The gutters only overflow now when I forget to clean the spruce needles and cones from them.

We have a new roof, a fence between us and the highway with its almost-constant traffic growl which no longer disturbs us, and a house that has become very much our home.

Not necessarily our last home. Win and I aren't swallow-the-anchor people. We have learned to live by and for the day to an extent that both surprises and amuses us. A time may come when another change is indicated: until then our concern is with a present which we find very much to our taste.

There is a time for work, and a time for drifting. That first summer gave us what I now realize we badly needed — a long and carefree holiday. We soaked in a lot of sunshine. We went fishing and berry-picking and beach-rambling. When the inevitable summer guests arrived, we let them set their own pace.

They asked questions. "Don't you get lonely for the city?" or "What do you find to do with yourselves?"

While we have the luck to be together, Win and I will never be lonely. And in that first therapeutic summer, the necessity of finding things to do didn't intrude itself.

When fall brought brisker days, I returned to my old trade of freelance writing after a lapse of 10 columnizing years. The prospects weren't encouraging. I was out of touch with the markets. Most of the magazines I'd once written for were gone, killed off by changing times.

And a run-of-the-mill writer out of circulation for as little as a year becomes aware of a dismaying fact.

He is once more an unknown, a beginner who must start from scratch. Also, he must scratch like the very devil.

We entered on a lean year of slim pickings. I added to my collection of editors' rejections slips. But with a minor sale here and another there and rather more fish, clams and oysters in our diet than we might have preferred — we weathered through.

One day, a cheque for a piece we'd believed lost without trace turned up in our mail. The amount was small, but it brought a glow. We drove up to Campbell River to cash the cheque, and were about to go home to a clam chowder lunch when my partner hesitated.

"Those were my photographs they bought with that article," she said. "I can spend the money any way I want. I'm going to take us to Mr. Mike's for lunch."

A wonderful treat! We hadn't eaten out for many a month. That day also marked a turning-point. Reader's Digest bought an article soon after, and while we were still rejoicing in that strike, a shot-in-the-dark try at television scripting struck pay-dirt.

Yet, strangely, we remember that first hard year as one of our best. Surely one of life's finest gifts to a couple whose children are grown and gone is the chance to move out from the known and too-familiar along new paths.

We are not quite the same man and woman who left Victoria five years ago. Our values have changed, and so has our outlook. The fact of living matters more to us than life's material gifts. We neither brood on the past nor anticipate the future.

Oh yes — We still love Victoria, and incline to consider this up-Island community with its harsher winds and wilder rains no more than an outer suburb of Canada's fairest city. But we don't regret the breakaway. We are happy here, and we feel that we have been very lucky.

DRY WEATHER A NUISANCE

The dry season brings its share of nuisance calls to firemen, who put out nine grass, bush and beach fires over the weekend in Victoria.

Deputy fire chief Mike Heppell said some people who party on the beach walk off without extinguishing their bonfires — which incidentally, are contrary to parks bylaws — despite several weeks without rain.

Three of the blazes were in Beacon Hill Park, none serious.
